We Also Come to Barter.
Ford's Indirect Million.
Beaverbrook on Russia.
Mapping Out Relief.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ONE WEEK AGO, we learned that Russia was sending gasoline to South America, taking breeding cattle in exchange. That seemed quite amusing, "going back to ancient days of barter." Now the United States government has arranged with Brazil to exchange wheat for coffee. That is not amusing but businesslike. Adopt a good idea, no matter where you find it.

BARTERING AMONG nations thousands of miles apart tells what an uncertain thing our "magnificent financial system" is.

We have our gold standard, and five billions of gold piled away in the treasury. We think we have solved the great problems of exchange, and we imagine, foolishly, that we understand money. Suddenly, we find ourselves trading wheat for coffee, because the grand system of finance has broken down, in a temporary world depression.

Demonetizing silver, destroying its value, is one cause of our troubles.

SENATOR COUZENS, of Michigan, contributes $1,000,000 to the unemployed in Detroit, foreseeing trouble this winter.

It is interesting to reflect, without thus diminishing Senator Couzens' credit, that the $1,000,000 given really comes from Henry Ford's industrial genius.

SENATOR COUZENS invested a small sum, less than $2,000, in Ford's enterprise long ago. Ford bought him out for more than $30,000,000 cash, and Ford's $30,000,000 supply the $1,000,000 which Detroit's unemployed will get from Couzens.

LORD BEAVERBROOK, able British publisher, seems a good prophet. One day he predicts that the MacDonald cabinet will probably fall soon and the Tories come in. Next day King George travels all night that he might arrive in London in time for the change in government, should it come.

Beaverbrook says the Russian "five-year plan" must be a complete failure. His reasons for that belief would be interesting.

IVAN THE TERRIBLE carried out his plan, making Russia a nation. Peter the Great carried out his plan, changing Russia from an Asiatic to a European nation.

Stalin, from the Caucasus, an absolute Russian, who calls himself "an Asiatic" and has his ancestral roots buried thousands of years deep in Russia, might carry out his plan.

PETER IMPORTED English merchants, Italian artists, French mechanics and artisans, of all kinds, in his program. Stalin is importing American engineers, American machines, American methods.

The Russians are a great people, perhaps the greatest on earth, in undeveloped power, and undeveloped wealth. It is dangerous to underestimate them.

PRESIDENT HOOVER and Walter S. Gifford, head of the Telephone and Telegraph Company, have been "mapping out relief efforts" at Rapidan Camp. Both are able men, both intent on avoiding conditions that threaten for the coming winter.

But how can you "map out relief?" You can appropriate money, distributing it as widely and wisely as possible. But that would be the dreaded "dole" which our government fears as much as Satan is supposed to fear holy water.

IT SEEMED ALL RIGHT to give 40 millions to one street car company during the war, all right to give millions of acres of land to railroads for developing the country. It is all right to subsidize a Shipping Board with many millions.

But when you talk of giving $15 or $20 a week, in real cash, to families, whose heads are unemployed, our financial system shivers like an elephant with pneumonia.

WHY? THE ANSWER is simple. Big taxpayers are afraid they will have to supply money for the dole, and big taxpayers are the government.

Something worse might happen to them, if they let things drift, and try to meet the temporary breakdown of their own industrial system with the help of charity organizations, and inadequate public appeals.

OIL PRICES, too low, afflict natives in the Belgian Congo. The price of their oil and palm nuts has fallen more than 80 per cent.

Suddenly appeared a witch doctor, native priest, who enrolled the dicontented savages in the religion of the "Satanas." He promised that Satan would come, at night, through a subterranean passage bringing money, provisions, clothes, would make crops grow in a single night, and make the bullets of white men go through the bodies of the Satanas, without hurting them.

THE NATIVES prepared presents for Satan, killed an agent of the Belgian government, cut up his body, and dried the pieces, to be used as charms.

Then white men's bullets went through the natives, but NOT without hurting them. Many were killed, Satan lost

LINDBERGHS SUSPECTED IN JAPAN

Fog Blamed for Route Shift Over Fortified Islands; Nemuro Gives Pair Ovation

TOKIO, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Rengo, semi-official Japanese news agency, said today that "suspicions" had been aroused because of the course followed by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh along a certain portion of the Kurile Island route in their frequently interrupted flight from Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, to Nemuro, Japan.

The news agency said Japanese authorities contended that the famous aviator and his wife had flown over prohibited areas and had descended twice in lakes where landings were prohibited.

WATCH COURSE

Rengo said it understood that authorities who had been watching Lindbergh's progress down the Kurile Islands contended the fliers had landed not only on prohibited lakes, but also on other waters not specified by the aviation bureau in the emergency descent permit which it issued at the request of the American embassy prior to Lindbergh's departure from Petropavlovsk.

Prior to leaving Petropavlovsk last Wednesday the Lindberghs, from available weather reports, concluded tricky fogs might overtake them and on that account applied to the American embassy for an emergency landing permit which was granted by the Aviation Bureau without hesitation.

The permit designated Kakunubetsu, Paramushir Island, and Muroton Bay, Shimushiru Island, as emergency landing places. The Lindberghs encountered fog a few hours out of Petropavlovsk and landed at Ketoi Island, 15 miles from Muroton Bay, after report-up by two gunmen, robbed of about $200 in bills, part of Sunday's collection. Checks and silver totaling $400 were spurned.

TWO GUNMEN FLEE WITH RECEIPTS

Holding up the pastor and secretary of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church, North Fremont avenue, today, two armed Negroes escaped with $200 in bills from the offices, leaving more than $100 in checks and silver.

The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Robert F. Galbreath, and secretary, E. U. Baker, were alone in the church when the robbers entered.

THREATENS SECRETARY

The first robber stepped into the pastor's study just after Mr. Baker had entered and at the point of a revolver commanded:

"Stick 'em up and keep quiet."

The second robber proceeded to the study, where the money was on top of the desk. Mr. Baker had been preparing to take the money to the bank.

Scooping up the bills and purposely leaving the checks and silver, the robber signaled his companion. As they were leaving the study, the first bandit threatened:

"Keep quiet for five minutes or I'll come back."

SEE MEN FLEE

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stulen, living next to the church, 26 North Howard avenue, had noticed the Negroes enter the building. Suspicious of the men's actions, they watched until the robbers started running down North Fremont avenue. The Stulens entered the church immediately.

Dr. Galbreath called Bellevue police, who traced the robbers' flight in the direction of Woods Run. A third man, it was learned, joined the pair after leaving the church. Dr. Galbreath said:

"The robbers were young. They entered by the Howard street entrance. No attempt was made to molest Mr. Baker or myself, other than the threats to keep quiet."

FALL IN SHAFT INJURES 3

LIGHTHILL, ELMER, 41, of 3021 Shadeland avenue, the most seriously hurt. In Presbyterian Hospital with extent of injuries undetermined, but listed as "extremely serious."

LANGHEIM, OTTO, 42, of 1236 Palo Alto street. In Mercy Hospital, with a fractured pelvis and probable internal injuries.

Scranton Miss Found Alone, 'Broke' in Rooming House

Stranded without funds, Mary Malloy, 17, a high school junior, of Scranton, was arrested in an Irwin avenue rooming house early today as a runaway. She told Michael Feeney, head of the Missing Persons Bureau, that she had been forced to accompany Edward Scott, 24, her sweetheart, and Paul Jackson, 25, both of Scranton, to Pittsburgh. Scott and Jackson are being sought for Scranton police.

Scott, who planned to marry the girl, deserted her last week when his funds became exhausted, she said.

Miss Malloy told Detective Feeney that she had met Scott a month ago, and during an automobile ride he proposed that they elope. Refusing to take Miss Malloy back to Scranton or to permit her to leave the machine, Scott and Jackson drove to Pittsburgh, where they obtained a room in Irwin avenue, she said.

JUDGE MARTIN'S SON KILLED

Shot through the neck when his gun was accidentally discharged while on a hunting trip on Manitoulin Island, Ontario, Canada, William McFall Martin, 18, son of the late Judge Richard Martin, died almost instantly Saturday afternoon. According to a boy companion, Martin tripped over a rock, striking the butt of the rifle against the ground and discharging it.

The body was brought back to Pittsburgh last night by his mother, Mrs. Mary Martin, and his two brothers, Richard, 19, and Bruce, 16. Funeral services will be held at the home, 5807 Stanton avenue, East End, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30.

Childless Wife Kills Her Husband

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Anna Brown, 25, yesterday shot and killed her husband, Harry, 36, during a quarrel in their home at Garbutt.

Mrs. Brown was charged with murder. She told county authorities her husband berated her constantly because she did not have children, and that he beat her upon her return from a physician's office, where she was told it was impossible for her to have children.

Cigar Lighter Brings Firemen Downtown

Treasury Secretary, Home From Europe, Meets Banker

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, returning from Europe on the Conte Biancamano today, was cut on the hand by fragments of a flashlight bulb, and then, because of a mistake in arrangements, was driven through town in a confiscated rum-runner's automobile.

Cameramen boarded the liner at quarantine and Mellon, back from moratorium conferences, which he refused to discuss, posed for photographs. One of the flashlights exploded and fragments of glass slashed Mellon's right hand. Startled by the sudden explosion, the Treasury head jumped back and clasped his left hand over his right, while his secretary, Coast Guard officials, and Henry C. Stuart, deputy collector of the port, sprang forward to his assistance.

The secretary almost at once began to smile and passed the incident off as of no consequence. He cheerfully accepted the ministrations of the ship's surgeon and then boarded the cutter Raritan, which had been sent down the bay to meet him. Landing at the Battery, where he was not expected, he found his car was not on hand.

Casting about for an automobile for him, customs officials pressed into service a confiscated car which until three weeks ago was being used for running smuggled liquor across the Canadian border.

In this automobile the secretary of the Treasury rode through the financial district to the Federal Reserve Bank where he held a conference with George L. Harrison, Governor, prior to taking an afternoon train for Washington.

KLINE BREACH WIDENED

By MARK SHIELDS

Mrs. A. G. H. Frazier was named vice chairman of the Joseph G. Armstrong campaign committee today. With the appointment came indications that the breach between the Armstrong and Kline forces was widened, and that the divorce between the Leslie and Armstrong factions was through the healing process.

Mrs. Frazier, ousted June 1929 as vice chairman of the Republican County Committee, presumably through Kline auspices, bounced back today to assist Armstrong in his campaign for Commissioner against Senator James J. Coyne, Kline candidate.

The supplanting of Mrs. Frazier, who is closely allied with Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, Leslie wingman, came a short time after the Malone-Kline fight for Mayor.

Stolen Coach Found Wrecked and Looted

Thieves who stole the invalid coach of J. G. Henney, Carnegie funeral director, did not leave much of the machine for him to reclaim. The coach was only missing one day, but when it was recovered in the Evergreen road the transmission had been broken, a wheel and two tires were destroyed and a set of tools stolen.

Gas Bomb Routs Two—By Mistake

A tear gas bomb, presumably hurled at the Taxicab Drivers Union headquarters at 527 Fifth avenue, missed early today and discharged its contents in an areaway forcing Charles Schmidt, manager of a White Tower Restaurant, and a customer to the street.

Schmidt described the bomb as measuring six or seven inches long and approximately 4 inches in diameter. It was heavily charged.

O'Neill, Fugitive Oil Man, Dies in French Exile

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Word was received here today of the death in Cannes, France, of James E. O'Neill, oil man, who became an exile from the United States to evade testifying in the Teapot Dome oil lease conspiracy case.

O'Neill resigned the presidency of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, with headquarters at Independence, Kan., in 1923 and a few months later went to Europe. He said he preferred to live abroad rather than testify against friends.

O'Neill was 64 years old.

O'Neill was one of two witnesses who fled to Europe to escape testifying in the Teapot Dome cases, Harry M. Blackmer, of Denver, former chairman of the Midwest Refining Company, the other man whose testimony was sought, is still abroad.

Rum Seized on Atterbury Yacht in Alaska

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Customs officers revealed here that an Alaskan law "prohibiting possession, in any form, of intoxicating liquors," caused the seizure of a supply of liquors from the yacht of Gen. W. W. Atterbury, head of the Pennsylvania Railroad, M. S. Whitter, assistant collector of customs, said:

"Under the circumstances there was nothing for our agents to do but make the seizure. The law prohibits possession in any form."

Gen. Atterbury docked his yacht here several weeks ago while on a cruise of Alaskan waters. Customs officials said a small amount of rye whisky and champagne was destroyed. They said Gen. Atterbury appeared indignant at the loss of the liquor.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Gen. W. W. Atterbury, aboard whose yacht customs officials at Ketchikan, Alaska, said they seized a quantity of liquor, is completing a combined business and pleasure tour of the Pacific Coast and Alaska.

Gen. and Mrs. Atterbury left here the last week in June by rail for the Pacific Coast and have been in Alaska and cruising in Alaskan waters for several weeks. They are expected to return here about August 31, by rail, by way of Vancouver.

HOOVER RELIEF PLAN SUPREME TEST OF U. S. GENEROSITY

GIFFORD OPENS OFFICES IN CAPITAL

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—President Hoover's plan for relieving unemployment distress next winter through local agencies got under way today as his newly-created national relief organiaztion opened headquarters in the capital.

The President's plan for feeding, clothing and sheltering the unemployed will "test the generosity of the American people as never before in history," as one of his spokesmen explained. The national organization under Walter S. Gifford, New York business executive, will merely serve to spur on and co-ordinate local relief movements.

DISCUSSION AT CAMP

A fund of approximately $250,000,000 must be raised by private and semi-public agencies, it was learned, to make the President's plan successful. If the local agencies fail to reach this mark or that fund proves insufficient the administration undoubtedly will be forced into the appropriation of federal funds. Thus far the administration's plan includes no such provision.

The vast amount necessary for relief work next winter was indicated when three cities—New York, Detroit and Philadelphia—reported drives for a total of $50,500,000. Detroit headed the list with a program for $20,500,000 with Senator James Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan offering to contribute $1,000,000 personally if the city could raise $9,000,000 from other sources. New York reported a drive would be made to raise $20,000,000 while the Philadelphia goal was set at $10,000,000.

VAST NEED CITED

That proportionately large funds must be raised in other cities was revealed by Arch Coleman, First Assistant Postmaster General in a speech to the United National Association of Postoffice Employes in Boston.

The President's new commission meanwhile received telegrams pledging co-operation from Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, of Illinois; Gov. William T. Gardiner, of Maine, and Gov. J. Whant, of New Hampshire.

AIR CHALLENGE TO GANGDOM

A challenge to gangdom voiced by national, state and civic leaders at a mass demonstration in New York, will be broadcast by WJZ, 760 kilocycles, at 8 and 10:30 o'clock tonight. Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state under President Wilson, will preside at the meeting, which is sponsored by the New York American, a Hearst newspaper.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, will speak at 8 o'clock and Gen. Smedley D. Butler, of the U. S. Marines, at 10:30. Louise Lerch, former Metropolitan opera star, will sing the "Star Spangled Banner." George M. Cohan has written a special song for the massed bands. It is titled, "Mr. Racketeer, Goodbye."

World Ills Blamed On Versailles Pact

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(INS)—United States Senator Henrik Shipstead, of Minnesota, blamed the Treaty of Versailles for the deterioration of the world today upon his arrival from Europe on the steamer Stavangerfjord. He said:

"The world is going to hell today on account of that piece of insanity called the Treaty of Versailles. Thank God the United States never approved it. We should be more proud of that every day of our lives."

ing they had been unable to locate the latter place through the fog bank.

LINDY BLAMES FOG

After leaving Muroton Bay last Saturday and again encountering fog the fliers radioed Ochiishi Station at Nemuro requesting designation of a nearby emergency landing. Aviation Officer Tanaka at Nemuro specified Bettobu, near Shana, but Lindbergh landed at Shana instead, explaining later that the visibility was so poor that they could not distinguish Bettobu.

Rengo quoted the authorities as saying the course the Lindberghs were permitted to take was along the east side of the Kuriles and not over any of the islands, and that the prohibited area includes Kunashiri, where the fliers spent last night.

Authorities still were talking about the flight, but there was no indication as to what action would be taken.

GIRL FACES QUIZ

A report that Amy Johnson, British aviatrix who, because of storms, returned to Osaka after reaching Fusan, Korea, would be questioned by the police, had not reached government officials tonight. However, government authorities expressed the belief that she might be asked, as a matter of routine, regarding her route, as police make cut reports of such cases.

Recently Hugh Herndon, Jr., and Clyde Pangborn, American round-the-world fliers, were arrested and heavily fined for flying over and photographing fortifications on their way to Tokio. They still have not been granted permission to hop off for Seattle.

Meanwhile Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh finally reached Nemuro today after having spent five days and made four forced landings in negotiating the 897 miles from Petropavlovsk. Leaving Lake Annoro, Kunashiri Island, 50 miles north of here, where they were forced to descend yesterday, the Lindberghs landed here at 7:51 a. m. (5:51 p. m. eastern standard time), while the shout of "Banzai" went up from a great crowd which had assembled to welcome them.

GREAT OVATION

The fliers were hurried ashore in a launch, escorted by city officials. They raised their hands in acknowledgment of the tremendous ovation. Mrs. Lindbergh bowed and smiled as hundreds of school children waved Japanese and American flags and chorused a welcome.

The Colonel smiled and said:

"We are a bit late."

Hurried to their hotel for a moment's rest, the Lindberghs were soon forced to come to their balcony and acknowledge the tribute of immense throngs that gathered in the adjacent streets. Again the Colonel spoke. He said:

"We are glad to be in Nemuro. Thank you; thank you."

The Lindberghs then withdrew to their rooms, where hot baths had been prepared in the vat-like Japanese tubs.

Just before their landing, the Lindberghs radioed a message to the people of Nemuro, saying:

"We have been deeply impressed with the sympathy and assistance of the Japanese people, especially of the citizens of Nemuro, since our departure from Petropavlovsk. We wish to express our hearty thanks from the air."

N. Y. WELCOMES RECORD FLIERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Russell Boardman and John Polando, Bay state fliers who flew nonstop from New York to Istanbul, Turkey, and so brought back to America the long-distance flight record, returned today to receive an official welcome.

The city tug Macom went down the bay to meet the fliers with representatives of the Mayor, the Army and Navy, and with the fliers' wives and relatives.

Boardman and Polando were so excited at seeing their wives that they jumped from the liner Excalibur to the Macom before they were supposed to, and customs officials made them go back, postponing their welcome kisses until governmental formalities had been complied with.

As the Macom progressed to the Battery, escorted by spraying fireboats, Clarence Chamberlin stunted a plane in the drizzling skies above. The fliers were taken uptown along Broadway to City Hall and a welcome luncheon at the Advertising Club.

MAN SOUGHT IN DEATH PLUNGE OF BRIDE

Young Wife of Naval Officer Believed to Have Resisted Advances of Party Guest

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—Believed to have plunged from the window of her apartment while defending herself against an unidentified man after a gay party in her apartment, Mrs. Daisy Price, 26, six-weeks bride of Lieut. Com. George D. Price, flight commander aboard the naval aircraft carrier Lexington, was dead here today.

The four-story plunge which caused the death of the beautiful young bride, who was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beury, of Charleston, W. Va., was seen by Burton Templeton, who lived across the court from Mrs. Price's apartment.

WOMAN SCREAMS

Attracted by the sound of breaking glass, Templeton rushed to his window to see a bottle of liquor come flying through the window, followed by a chair.

He heard a woman's scream crying:

"Help—please—don't."

Then he saw the woman's body come hurtling through the shattered window to plunge to the pavement, four stories below.

Rushing to the courtyard, Templeton bent over the crushed form. He asked:

"Why did you jump?"

The woman gasped:

"I didn't; I was thrown."

A few hours later Mrs. Price died at St. Joseph's Hospital after telling Assistant District Attorney Walter Schiller in a dying statement:

"It was all my fault."

HUSBAND ABSENT

Price declared that the party had been organized at his instigation, but that he had been unable to attend due to a last minute change in watches aboard the ship.

He told police that he believed his wife had plunged to her death while defending herself against unwelcome advances of one of her guests who had secreted himself in the apartment until the others had left.

This theory was borne out, according to Inspector Allen McGinn, of the homicide squad, by the fact that the woman's back and the back of her legs and arms were cut by the shattered glass remaining in the window frame, indicating she had been shoved out backward.

TOULOUSE, France, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Joseph Lebrix and Marcel Doret, French aviators who were forced down in Siberia on their attempted non-stop flight from Paris to Tokio, have tested a new plane, the Hyphen II, and plan to fly it today to Thun, Switzerland.

They said they might take off on another attempt to fly from Paris to Tokio at the end of this week.

LATROBE BANK FAILS TO OPEN

LATROBE, Pa., Aug. 27.—The Peoples National Bank, with deposits aggregating $2,500,000, failed to open its doors today and is in charge of C. E. Underwood, national bank examiner.

A statement on the door stated that at a meeting of the directors on Saturday evening the closing was decided upon to "conserve the assets for loyal depositors."

The bank, one of the oldest in Latrobe, erected a new banking house in the center of town about five years ago. Assets of the institution are said to total $3,200,000. Charles McLaughlin is president and A. F. Downing, vice president. Heavy withdrawals over an extended period is said to have forced the closing.

EVERY AMERICAN knows Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney. How many ever heard of Dr. Pauling, the 30-year-old American chemist who has won the Langmuir prize?

Only 12 men understand the Einstein discovery. Einstein himself does not thoroughly understand Dr. Pauling's discovery—"the nature of chemical bonds that fasten the elements together" and rule the small universe called the molecule. It was too much for Dr. Einstein when Pauling explained it. "I shall have to brush up," said Einstein. But he admitted that he didn't know—one of the surest indications of greatness.

Body of Sewickley Actress Brought Home by Mother

Instead of embarking upon a holiday in Maine, Mrs. Mary Kline Mehard, of Sewickley, today completed funeral arrangements for her daughter, Mrs. Brown Mehard Griffith, 24, Sewickley divorcee, who plunged to her death from a four floor window of the Somerset Hotel in New York early Sunday.

News of the death of her daughter, with whom she was to have spent the holiday, reached Mrs. Mehard as the liner which was returning her from a European trip docked. She collapsed when informed.

FALL ACCIDENTAL

Mrs. Mehard brought the body of her daughter to Pittsburgh today for burial tomorrow following funeral services at 3 p. m. in the home of Mrs. Charles W. Brown in Academy avenue, Sewickley.

The death plunge of the popular stock company actress, whose performances delighted Pittsburgh friends while a member of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt Theater, followed a gala evening spent in New York and Harlem night clubs in company with Miss Alice Meehan, of Franklin road, North Side, a family nurse and companion; James Flavin, vaudeville actor, of Portland, to whom Mrs. Griffith was engaged, and Flavin's friend, Edward Wade, also of Portland. Police described the fall as accidental.

FATHER MEETS TRAIN

W. J. Griffith, Jr., an aviator, divorced husband of Mrs. Griffith, was en route to New York at the time of the tragedy to visit his former wife and request her permission to take their son, Billy, 4, on a vacation trip.

Mrs. Mehard's divorced husband, Gen. Churchill B. Mehard, father of the dead girl, socially prominent Pittsburgh attorney, greeted the mourning mother at the Pennsylvania Station here today.

REVOLT FEARED IN WAKE OF FLOOD

NANKING, Aug. 24.—Officials of the Nationalist government are gravely concerned by the possibility of disorders, perhaps amounting to a Communist-fostered revolution, throughout Central China as the worst flood the nation has seen in 500 years slowly subsided.

With uncounted thousands of human bodies unburied in the flood districts around Hankow and other sections of Hunan and Hupeh provinces, added deaths at the rate of more than 1,000 a day are following in the wake of China's worst disaster.

EPIDEMICS RAGING

The great Yangtse River, after rising to 53 feet and 6 inches above normal, was gradually receding today.

The countless bodies of humans and animals cannot be buried in the sea of mud that remains.

It may be six weeks before the flooded area is completely drained.

Epidemics have broken out, and the scourge of typhoid, cholera, smallpox and other diseases has added to the distress of starvation for millions of homeless.

Dr. We Kuo-Cheng, director of the financial bureau of Hupeh province, center of the flood area, arriving at Nanking today to confer with Nanking officials, told the Associated Press that 10,000,000 persons are absolutely destitute in his province alone.

He said there probably are more than 15,000,000 destitute in the adjoining provinces of Anhwei, Kiangsi and Hunan.

BREAK DROWNS 1,000

SHANGHAI, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—A dispatch to the Kuomin News Agency from Hankow today said more than 1,000 refugees housed in the barracks at Wuchang, across the Yangtse River, were drowned as a result of a fresh break in the dike.

BROTHERS GET THEFT TERMS

Two brothers received penitentiary and workhouse sentences for highway robbery today.

Payton McIvory, 26, of 16 Camp avenue, Duquesne, was given 3 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge James H. Gray in Criminal Court. He had served time before in an Ohio prison.

Thomas McIvory, 20, was given a year to 10 years in the workhouse. It was his first offense.

The brothers held up A. C. Pasolas, of Wilson, tied his hands behind his back with his suspenders and then strapped him to a pipe along a railroad near Wilson. They took his flashlight and revolver, it was testified, and threatened to kill him.

Legion Head Opposes Soldier Pensioning

BALTIMORE, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Robert H. Archer, Jr., newly elected commander of the American Legion, Department of Maryland, opposes any form of soldier bonus or pension except as it may apply to veterans wounded or suffering from an illness caused by their service in the World War.

He took this stand today in his first public statement since his election as head of the Maryland Legion at the closing session of the organization's convention in Frostburg, Saturday.

$2,057,000 Sought In Kansas Oil Suit

MANHATTAN, Kan., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Attorneys for A. W. Long, former president of the Long Oil Company of Manhattan, Kan., filed suit here asking $2,057,000 damages of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, and L. R. Crawford, president of the Producers and Refiners Oil Company, and trustee for Prairies. Long asked $57,000 actual and $2,000,000 exemplary damages, charging the defendants were parties in a conspiracy to obtain control of the Long Oil Company, which operates 68 gasoline filling station in Kansas.

Polish Stunt Flier In U. S. for Races

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Capt. Boleslaw Orlinski, Polish aviator, who will participate in the national air races at Cleveland, O., arrived here on the liner Britannic.

Capt. Orlinski, a stunt flier, was accompanied by Col. Czeslaw Filipowicz, head of the Polish civil aviation department, and a mechanic for his plane, which was shipped to Cleveland.

Prohibition to Furnish Presidential 'Fireworks'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(Universal)—A spectacular struggle in the national conventions over anti-prohibition planks in the Republican and Democratic platforms for the presidential election is looming as a result of recent activities of G. O. P. leaders from the less arid states.

President Hoover, it was learned, is being subjected to increasing pressure from party leaders, particularly in the East, to sanction a plank that would offer some relief from Volsteadism. Thus far he has turned a deaf ear to all such suggestions.

The Presidential rebuffs, however, have failed to dampen the ardor of the Republican drys. They propose to carry the fight to the floor of the convention with the same determination that will characterize the battle waged by the Democratic antis for a repeal or modification plan.

The Democratic Drys are bitterly opposed to the efforts of Chairman Raskob, of the National Committee, to force a repeal or modification plank on the ground that it will force virtually all of the candidates in the South to bolt the platform on that issue.

President Hoover is represented as believing that the dry issues will cut little figure in the campaign, which will be fought out largely on economic issues.

Dines on Metal and Glass In Indigestion Research

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—For more than a year Frederick Hoelzel has been eating pellets of metal, glass beads, strands of knotted thread and twine.

He has even eaten gold and solid rubber—not because he likes their taste—but because he volunteered to aid University of Chicago physiologists in experiments which they hope will discover information which will aid them in conquering indigestion.

Prof. Anton Julius Carlson, head of the university physiological department, is directing the research, news of which became public today when it was announced that the experiment would be described in a book by Milton Mayer and John Howe.

The metal which Hoelzel eats is mixed with the usual fare of a healthy person. He first offered himself because he suffered from severe stomach trouble while a high school student here. He came to Chicago from Germany and has been a student at both the University of Illinois at Urbana and the University of Chicago.

SUBMARINE NAUTILUS LOSES DIVING RUDDER AMID ICE

SHIP 500 MILES FROM POLE BIDES TIME

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS

Commander of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Trans-Arctic Submarine Expedition.

By Radio via American Radio News Corporation and Radio-Marine Corporation.

ABOARD THE SUBMARINE NAUTILUS, at Sea, Aug. 24.—With spray freezing on deck and great ice caps heaving about her sides, the Nautilus after reaching to within almost 500 miles of the North Pole, had to get away from among the heavy pack ice to greater safety in open water.

In fog, snowstorm, wind and sleet it was impossible to judge ice conditions, and it was extremely unsafe to lie among the loose but heavy pack.

Had we been further in among the larger floes, it would have been much safer. For hours we have been lying in a patch of open water, our lead all set for diving under as soon as conditions improve.

When Capt. Danenhauer was looking through the clear water over our stern he noticed something missing from behind the propeller. Closer inspection showed that it was the diving rudder.

DIVER NEAR DEATH

The vessel was put in the lee of the ice. It was late Saturday night when Diver Frank Crilly, who bravely volunteered for the job, was lowered between ice fragments to inspect the vessel's stern. He was down for several minutes and then reported that both sides of the diving rudder were gone. The steering rudder was intact and in good order.

It is a mystery what became of the diving rudders and how they could have left the ship without damaging the steering rudder, but the fact remains that they are gone. Our ordinary steering gear is safe.

Crilley went down for a few minutes today and, after a stiff battle, said that diving in Arctic waters was not as terrifying as it looked from the surface. He said he was unable to see a thing through his helmet.

Quartermaster Edward Clark, Oiler Raymond Drakio and Ray E. Meyers, chief radio operator, went to his assistance and helped him to safety.

BATTERY BREAKDOWN

We also discovered that a jar in the battery bank had cracked.

Clarence D. Holland and Cornelius Royster, assistant electricians, aided by three others of the crew, worked on the cell, but had to eliminate it to get the bank going again.

Helen, whose little playmate, Catherine Zimmerling, 3, was one of three victims of an ax wielded by Miner John Kiski, 45, who ran wild in Renton, Pa., mining town, chasing his family, smashing furnishings in his home before he went out, struck down three.

RENTON MANIAC WOUNDS 3 WITH AX

Assailant Taken Back to Asylum After Reign of Terror in Mining Town

A demented man, and three of his victims, struck down in his wild charge through a mining settlement at Renton, were in Citizens' General Hospital New Kensington, today, two of them suffering injuries which may cause their death.

The victims are Catherine Zummerling, 3; George Andrews, 45; unidentified man about 50, and John Kiski, 45, the assailant, all of the "Patch," a mining community at Renton, where the attacks occurred.

According to Mrs. Mary Kiski, her husband, once an insane asylum inmate, started his rampage by attempting to choke her as she walked the kitchen floor with her 7-month-old baby in her arms late yesterday. She escaped to the home of a neighbor.

Then, police said, Kiski attempted to set fire to his home, went to the home of John Sterner, a neighbor, where he attacked Andrews, a roomer, and then to a deserted barracks where he clubbed his unidentified victims.

The Zummerling child was struck down, police said, as she played in a neighbor's yard.

Wilbur Clark, of North Bessemer, grappled with the man and held him until aid came.

WICKERSHAM'S WORK ENDS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Absolving the foreign born of blame for the volume of crime in this country, the Wickersham Commission made clear today it could not say the same for the native born children of foreigners.

With this statement the commission severed its last official connection with the capital. It was learned that even the tiny temporary offices it had supported, after lack of funds caused the closing of the former elaborate headquarters July 1, had closed their doors late last week.

The report upon "crime and the foreign born" was the commission's fourteenth and last, save for a statement of its finances by Chairman Wickersham, addressed to President Hoover.

In it the members attacked what was termed a popular belief that aliens were responsible for more crime than any other class. Discussing the cause of this belief, however, the commission said it could not present either positive proof or denial as to the responsibility of the children of foreign parents.

SECOND PAPER BOMB TARGET

MANSFIELD, O., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Another Mansfield newspaper today had been made the target of unidentified vandals in the second bombing attempt in as many days.

A crudely made bomb, filled with gunpowder, was tossed into the building housing the Mansfield News late last night, but failed to explode. It ignited a pile of rags in a lower stairway, creating a smoldering blaze quickly extinguished by firemen.

Early Saturday the plant of the Mansfield Journal was partially wrecked when a bomb exploded in the basement, causing about $10,000 damage and injuring one man.

No motive for the vandalism was apparent, and the News management had no theory to offer.

RANSOM SOUGHT FOR KIDNAPED BOOKIE

Abductors Warn of Death Unless Quarter of Million Is Paid; Spurn $50,000

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—John J. (Jack) Lynch, sportsman and publisher of Racing Information, today was held by kidnapers, who demand a ransom of $250,000 under threat of death if the money is not paid today or tomorrow.

KIDNAPED THURSDAY

Lynch is a stockholder in the Arlington Park track, and part owner of the General News Bureau, which supplies racing news throughout the country, and owns a magnificent country estate in Lake Geneva, Wis., but it was not known whether his family and friends could raise a quarter of a million ransom.

The kidnaping occurred Thursday afternoon somewhere between his summer home and the city.

Mrs. Lynch appealed to Marty Guilfoyle, prominent handbook operator. The abductors Friday telephoned Guilfoyle a repetition of their demand on Mrs. Lynch for $250,000. He told them:

"I might be able to raise $50,000, but it will be impossible to get together more than that."

The answer was reported to have been:

"Nothing doing. It's a quarter of a million or we'll fill Lynch full of lead."

Lynch's friends suspected two groups. One group contained five gangsters who have been missing from their usual haunts. In the other group was a chauffeur Lynch discharged last winter.

KIDNAPING SEEN

LAKE GENEVA, Wis., Aug. 24.—(INS.)—A man giving the name of Boardman and his address as Beaver Dam, Wis., today told police here that he and his family had witnessed the kidnaping of John J. Lynch, millionaire head of a Chicago bookmaking syndicate.

The kidnaping, he said, took place in front of the White Pigeon schoolhouse, three miles east of here. He said three men in a dark car warned him not to stop, but that members of his family took the license number of one of the cars. The license was issued to Lynch.

Anti-Saloon League Opposes Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Opposition to Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, as a Democratic presidential candidate because of his stand against the prohibition amendment was voiced in a public statement issued here today by the Rev. Arthur J. Barton, of Wilmington, N. C., the chairman of the executive committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

Mr. Barton has been called to appear here this week in the Senate's inquiry into the use of funds by Bishop James Cannon, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in the southern campaign of 1928 against Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee.

Fined $10 Each In Theft of Auto

Three men, arrested yesterday in connection with the theft of the automobile of J. Samarco, 2421 avenue, were fined $10 each in Central Police Court today. They are Regis Hoag, 25, of 2407 Penn avenue; Walter Golden, 38, of 2530 Penn avenue, and Thomas Johnson, 39, of 2425 Penn avenue. Samarco said he did not wish to prosecute.

MRS. LOUISE M'PHETRIDGE THADEN . . . IN WOMEN'S DERBY

Gladys O'Donnell Leads Field Of 'Powder Puff' Derbyists Into Calexico Airport

By LOUISE THADEN

Winner of the 1929 National Air Derby for Women, and Pittsburgh's Representative in the 1931 Cross Country Derby.

CALEXICO, Cal., Aug. 24.—We are on our return to Cleveland. Fortune favoring us we should reach Tucson, Ariz., for the night. Present reports give weather conditions as good.

Although I was not among the first reaching Calexico from Santa Monica last night, I hope to have better success as the race continues. It's a long way to Cleveland, and I shall do my best to be among the first to arrive in the Ohio city.

O'DONNELL LEADS

Gladys O'Donnell led the handicap into town last night, with Phoebe Omlie second and Florence Lowe Barnes third. Gladys averaged 162 miles an hour.

Mrs. O'Donnell, Long Beach (Cal.) pilot, landed her plane at the local airport in the fastest time of any of the contestants—1 hour 13 minutes—but whether she won the event remained undecided.

Officials of the derby still were trying to straighten out the handicap calculations 12 hours after Mrs. O'Donnell landed.

I know, however, that I didn't make my percentage on account of going by the pass instead of flying a straight course over the mountains. I felt it was better going that way, as I didn't know what my motor was going to do. I kept going, although my oil temperature ran 115 degrees centigrade. Fortunately, the pressure didn't go down much.

AFFECTED BY SUN

Looking over the group as they poised for the take-off today, everyone seems to have been more or less affected by the hot sun. In my cabin plane, I look like a ripe tomato.

Some of the girls who have never flown a derby are pretty much excited, but the old heads are quite calm and collected.

It's just another flight to them.

Not only is this the largest massed flight of commercial airplanes that has ever been run, but there are an unusually large number of unusually good pilots and navigators.

It's going to be a fight from start to finish in that no pilot can afford to let down for a minute.

DO-X FILLED BY SIGHTSEERS

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 24.—(INS.)—Sightseeing aboard the DO-X, world's largest airplane, continued apace today. In the first nine hours after its arrival here from South America on its long-drawn out flight from Germany, more than 2,500 persons inspected the craft.

Officers of the giant plane said they intended to resume the hop to New York Tuesday.

AIR RACES SEEK WORLD FLIGHT

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—A widely diversified program appeared today to be in prospect for spectators at the national air races here beginning Saturday.

In addition to the usual speed, derby and stunt affairs, there was in prospect the start of a Cleveland-New York-Rome flight, a visit from the DO-X and the setting of new competitive speed records for the United States.

It became known today that efforts were being made by Cleveland friends of Mrs. Geraldine Gray Loffredo, of Buffalo, N. Y., for a take-off from the airport during the races on her hop to Rome. The plane would stop at New York, but the official starting place would be designated as Cleveland.

In view of recent announcements postponing the initial flight of the new Navy Zeppelin Akron, it became apparent the big ship would not appear for the races. However, race officials have extended an invitation to the DO-X, great German flying boat.

DENMARK PLANE REPORTED SAFE

DETROIT, Aug. 24.—(INS.)—Transamerican Air Lines Corporation reported today it had received radio messages from its fliers, Edwin L. Preston and Robert H. Collignon, at Portland Promontory, Port Hanson.

The Copenhagen-bound aviators had been unheard for two days since leaving Cochrane, Ontario. They reported their plane was in good condition and that they would probably take off Tuesday for Wakeham Bay, which is near the straits of Labrador.

Stricken Oil Man Gains; Out of Danger

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Physicians attending L. E. Phillips, 53, vice president of the Phillips Petroleum Company, who suffered an attack of acute indigestion, announced the oil man's condition was greatly improved.

The doctors said they considered Phillips out of danger, although it will be some time before his recovery is complete.

Walker in Budapest Meets Fliers, Mayor

Calling on the Lord Mayor to pay his respects before leaving for Vienna, Mayor Walker also met the fliers, Alexander Magyar and George Endres, who recently flew from New York to Budapest.

New Woman Witness Talks In Japanese Mystery

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—A new witness, who identified herself as Mrs. Jean Selz, was questioned today by Federal authorities investigating the mysterious disappearance of Hishashi Fujimura, wealthy Japanese silk merchant, last seen at sea on the liner Belgenland, August 14.

Neither the woman's connections with the missing importer nor the nature of the information authorities hoped to obtain from her was revealed.

Mrs. Selz entered the Federal Building shortly after Mrs. Mary Von Reissner, the former show girl who accompanied Fujimura on the six-day cruise to Halifax, and is said by the Federal agents to have quarreled with him the night preceding his disappearance.

Blase Reno Fails to Thrill As Dreiser Moves In

RENO, Aug. 24.—(Universal.)—Accustomed to providing at least temporary residence for persons of national and international prominence, Reno was showing no undue curiosity today in the local appearance of a new celebrity, Theodore Dreiser, author of "An American Tragedy" and other famed works.

Dreiser recently was seen in the nation's divorce capital when he paid a visit to Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., central figure in the widely heralded Vanderbilt-Arno imbroglio.

It was learned today that the writer is living at Glenbrook, on the six-weeks' residence side of Lake Tahoe, that he is not accompanied by his wife and that he is admittedly working on a new novel.

He refused either to admit or deny that his Nevada residence may have bearing on his matrimonial status. Mrs. Dreiser, the former Sarah Osborne White, of St. Louis, married the author in 1898.

ASSESSMENTS IN COYNE WARD CHECKED

23,623 Residents Out of 28,336 Ready to Vote; Average 80 Per Cent

A check of assessment lists of the Fourth Ward, in which State Senator James J. Coyne, candidate for county commissioner, resides, reveals that there are 23,623 citizens eligible to vote, compared with a total population in 1930 of 28,336.

This means that if the assessment list is authentic 80 per cent of the residents of the Fourth Ward are more than 21 years of age.

PROPERTY LISTINGS

Property assessments in the ward aggregate 4,287, according to records of the County Treasurer's office.

C. J. McBride, secretary of the Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes, said that A. E. Mamaux, subordinate assessor, had turned in 19,336 names in a house-to-house canvass made in May, June and July of non-property owners subject to poll tax.

A. E. Mamaux, assessor for the Fourth Ward, said:

"There is nothing abnormal. The books might show a slight increase over the last five years. Oakland is the largest rooming house section in the city, and that might account for a larger number of assessments in proportion to census figures. The books were made up from a personal canvass last year and there was no padding."

TO CHECK OTHERS

A check of other wards is contemplated to show whether this apparent disproportion of adults and children exists throughout the city.

The Registration Commission was expected to seek further conferences today with the County Tax Board for the purpose of getting access to the assessment books in an effort to strike off the names of persons not entitled to vote.

Two requests by the commission to allow its investigators to examine the assessors' books with the objective of determining the validity of recent entries have been refused by George J. Schad, chairman of the Tax Board, that is controlled by County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong.

Lightning Melts Necklace, But Wearer Is Safe

VIENNA, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Seventeen persons were burned, four seriously, as lightning struck a shelter hut on the Koralp near Wolfsberg, Styria, in which 70 persons were taking shelter, it was reported here.

BATTLES MARK POSTER WAR

The latest flareup in the political poster war occurred early yesterday at the Oakland headquarters of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, 3604 Fifth avenue.

Two plate glass windows, in each of which was posted a picture of Armstrong, were shattered by bricks. Oakland police said they had no clue to the identity of those responsible.

A muslin sign bearing Armstrong's name and strung across the street from two poles near the office of Alderman Luke J. Sullivan, at 2816 Penn avenue, was torn down Saturday. Virtually every pole in the Sixth Ward, an Armstrong stronghold, was decorated with James J. Coyne-for-County-Commissioner signs. The bills had been pasted on in the early hours of the morning.

WYMARD URGES HEAVY VOTE

Urging every citizen aged over 21 to be assessed, pay taxes, register and vote, N. L. Wymard, candidate for judge of County Court, carried his campaign to audiences in Gladstone School and in the Municipal Building of Homestead Park. He declared:

"Until every citizen registers and votes, we will be ruled by a small minority that has the foresight not to neglect the right of franchise. That right is a citizen's most precious possession and to neglect it is to do oneself a grave wrong."

Andrew E. Sheridan, chairman of the lawyers' committee supporting Wymard, today quoted a veteran political observer as saying he has never seen, in 35 years experience, a campaign progress as far as Wymard's has in the last two weeks.

YEAGER RALLY IN BROOKLINE

Candidates on the "independent" Republican ticket are scheduled to speak at a mass meeting tonight in Brookline Public School, Woodbourne and Pioneer avenues, under auspices of the Jacob Yeager for Alderman Committee, according to Deputy Attorney General Ralph H. Frank, chairman of the committee.

As an independent candidate for alderman of the Nineteenth Ward, Yeager is opposing Patrick Cawley, incumbent, who is seeking re-election with the support of Mayor Kline's organization. Yeager is a member of the Brookline Board of Trade and its delegate to the Allied Boards of Trade.

Judge Martin's Kin On Air For Reich

John J. O'Connor, uncle of the late Judge Richard W. Martin, will broadcast at 7:15 today over WWSW in behalf of the candidacy of Attorney Joseph H. Reich, who is running for judge of Common Pleas Court.

Bank Head Urges Depositors Spend Savings Now

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Walter H. Bennett, president of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, issued a statement advising his 249,000 depositors to keep an equivalent of six months' salary on deposit for emergencies and withdraw the rest "for the purchase of things you want for permanent use." He said:

"If you have a surplus, make careful purchase of things you want for permanent use while prices remain low.

"In our opinion the millions of savings depositors in this country have it in their power to change the whole aspect of industrial and trade conditions."

SLEUTH SHOT, ROBBER SLAIN

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 24.—(INS.)—An alleged robber was shot and killed by police machine gun fire, a detective was wounded and two alleged accomplices were caught today as the result of an anonymous tip to police that a robbery was in progress there.

The tip came early this morning. An unknown man called police and said:

A police detail rushed to the scene where Melbourne James, 28, was arrested when found in front of the store. Detectives Robert Ashenfelter, 36, and Benjamin Simon ran to the rear.

They were met by a fusillade of shots from within. Ashenfelter crumpled to the ground, badly wounded. Patrolman George Evans, with a machine gun, sprayed the interior of the store. The firing stopped. When police rushed in, they found Charles Rettberg, 29, dead on the floor. His brother, Theodore, 24, later was arrested at his home.

LABOR'S GROUP FOR MANSFIELD

John A. Phillips, president, and James E. Kelley, secretary, of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, in a letter made public today, pledged the support of the officers of the Federation to the campaign of William D. Mansfield, seeking nomination as County Commissioner.

The letter calls attention to Mansfield's votes on labor legislation during the last five sessions of the General Assembly, and declares:

"We find that you have consistently supported legislation that was for the benefit of the workers and that during the 1931 session you rendered great service to the officers of the Federation."

SMITH INDORSES SITTING JUDGES

William Watson Smith, former president of the Allegheny County Bar Association, who has indorsed the candidacy of the seven Common Pleas Court Judges, in a statement today said that he is impressed by the work done by the jurists from the public as well as a legal viewpoint.

He said:

"I note some fine men among other candidates, but I do not feel that they are entitled to take the place of the seven Judges who have served in the Court of Common Pleas and are now asking that they be returned in recognition for the work they have done there."

COYNE AND PARK TO SPEAK

Supporters of Senator James J. Coyne will gather tonight in Turner Park, Perrysville, to hear Coyne and District Attorney Andrew T. Park. There will be 15 speakers address the gathering, including a number of the candidates for judicial posts. Robert McQuade, Jr., will be chairman of the meeting. In addition to the speaking program there will be dancing and music.

Hamilton Urges County Economy

Economy in expenditures of public funds was stressed by C. C. Hamilton, candidate for the Republican nomination for County Commissioner, speaking before the Fifth Ward Republic Club at the Ebenezer Church. He said taxation in Allegheny County has reached a point where it is virtually confiscating real estate, and that taxpayers have reached the point where they will fight back.

ARMSTRONG'S BREACH WITH KLINE GROWS

Mrs. Lillian Morgart taking her place.

MANSFIELD CHIEF

Senator William D. Mansfield within the next few days will announce a manager of his campaign for the Republican nomination for County Commissioner. Mansfield today said he was hoping to secure the leadership of a man holding public office who resides outside the city of Pittsburgh, but declined to make known his name in advance of an acceptance of the invitation.

With Congressman Harry A. Estep already acting as manager of the campaign of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, separate battles for Mansfield and Armstrong are assured for the moment. The belief persists that separate headquarters do not mean that these two will not be, before the end of the campaign come to an open understanding. In that event, one man would coordinate the activities of the two candidates, with Estep and the Mansfield leader brought together.

MELLON RETURNING

Hope that W. L. Mellon, who is expected back in Pittsburgh tomorrow, will be able to cajole Armstrong and Senator James J. Coyne into a combination is fading almost to the vanishing point. Such a tie-up would carry with it indorsement of the Coyne-Kline councilmanic slate, and many business and financial leaders close in Mellon's confidence are set against such action.

It is being pointed out that the attack on the city purchasing department and the Kline-controlled council for its refusal to investigate that department, was pushed by a group of business leaders who have had friendly relations with Mellon enterprises. Any action by Mellon leading to inferential indorsement of the Kline council slate would be a repudiation of that business group.

If such thought had ever been in Mellon's mind, it was pointed out today, the time to have expressed it was before Mayor Kline and Bertram L. Succop were indicted.

ARMSTRONG INVASION

Armstrong's action in opening personal headquarters in Coyne's Fourth Ward is further evidence that the Commissioner intends to exert every effort to keep the Oaklander busy in the city while Armstrong and Mansfield are active in the county outside of Pittsburgh. If Armstrong expected to go along with Coyne, the last place he would personally interest himself would be the Fourth Ward, which Coyne can deliver intact to any one he favors.

Mansfield is under fire from two camps to come into the open. Influential Armstrong backers, it is known, men not professionally in politics, are insisting that he frankly declare an alliance, though they are willing to wait until next week for such a statement.

SHOWDOWN SOUGHT

On the other hand, the independent wing, led by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, is equally emphatic in demanding that Mansfield clarify his position.

It is possible McGovern will openly challenge Mansfield to a declaration of allegiance within a few days if the compaign continues in its confused state.

If Mansfield should declare for McGovern, which is improbable, the independent speakers will champion his cause. If he comes out for Armstrong, or merely remains silent, he will be coupled with Armstrong in the excoriations of McGovern.

Supporters of James P. Rooney, Coyne candidate for Council, are becoming displeased at what they term a refusal by other councilmanic candidates on the Kline-Coyne slate to help their man. If this feeling continues, it is possible some North Side sections will center on Rooney in an effort to put him over through the power of the controlled vote in a number of wards north of the Allegheny.

LAWYERS BACK LINDSAY

More than 100 members of the Allegheny County bar have organized a lawyers' committee to advance the candidacy of Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, who is seeking the Republican nomination as one of the seven Common Pleas Court judges to be elected this fall.

Officers of the committee are W. W. Stoner, chairman; J. Garfield Houston and Robbin Wolf, vice chairmen.

KING DISPROVES THEORY HE'S FIGUREHEAD

International News Service

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Barely recovered from the grave illness that all but cost him his life, King George stepped into the political arena in Britain today to give the lie to the theory that in a constitutional monarchy such as England the sovereign is but a figurehead.

Breaking his summer vacation at Balmoral Castle, Scotland, King George returned to London late Saturday. He arrived in the capital at 8 a. m. yesterday and went immediately to Buckingham Palace, to be ready for the conferences certain to develop owing to the inevitable fall of Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government.

FEW ATTENDANTS

The King returned attended only by his personal secretary and a few equerries. Buckingham Palace, the vaunt forbidding structure at the end of the famous Mall, was cheerless and uninviting. Throughout the huge gilded salons and the luxurious private apartments of the sovereigns white covers had been thrown over furniture to protect them from dust.

Shades were drawn and shutters were closed. The huge palace had been shut down completely and only a skeleton staff of servants left on hand, in the expectation that King George and Queen Mary would remain in Scotland until the middle of September at least.

Into this inhospitable atmosphere came the frail King early yesterday morning. A few servants did what they could for his comfort, lighting a log fire in one of the huge open fireplaces to take the chill off the room which the monarch chose as his political headquarters.

MACDONALD CALLS

Then the word went out that the King was ready to see his ministers to act in the advisory capacity in which he has often shown himself a diplomat of rare skill.

Premier MacDonald arrived on the scene early. For more than an hour he conversed with the Monarch, explaining in full detail the insurmountable obstacles he was facing.

Later in the afternoon Stanley Baldwin and Neville Chamberlain, leaders of the Conservative party, visited the King.

Then, as evening approached, MacDonald came to Buckingham Palace again, this time drawn and haggard. Watchers at the gates who saw him drive into the huge courtyard saw the white-haired Premier sitting slumped forward, his head in his hands and his hat on the seat beside him.

MONARCH'S SCHEME

This last meeting lasted for hours. MacDonald returned to Downing street after midnight. He refused to issue a statement, but all knew that the end was near. The last visit took place shortly after noon today, when MacDonald submitted his resignation as Labor premier and undertook the task of attempting to form a national coalition government. There was no doubt in the minds of competent political observers that the coalition scheme was King George's idea, put forward in a time of national stress and emergency and acted upon with a celerity eloquently proving the high regard in which British politicians hold the opinion of the monarch who sits upon Britain's throne.

Grow Food or Lose Jobs, Ford Tells His Workmen

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Family men employed by the Ford Motor Company here must either become home gardeners or forfeit their positions.

This edict was promulgated by Ford during an inspection trip as a measure to alleviate temporary business depression.

"Next year every man with a family who is employed at the plant will be required to have a garden of sufficient size to supply his family with at least a part of its winter's vegetables, or he will find himself out of a job."

Workers who have no available space for gardens will be supplied with land by the company, he said.

George before it could be formally constituted as a ministry.

The new cabinet, chosen solely as an emergency body to expedite to complete financial measures to meet the existing crisis by the end of September and then dissolve for General elections to be held in October or November, on strictly party lines, are expected.

Premier MacDonald left 10 Downing street shortly after 4 p. m. and drove to Buckingham Palace ostensibly to report to the King on the progress of his efforts.

Pressed by reporters for a statement, he first declined absolutely and then with a chuckle said:

"Everything is going as well as can be expected."

MACDONALD CHEERED

The Labor leader was greeted a stirring ovation as he rode through the streets. Dense crowds jamming Whitehall cheered him and mounted police had to clear a path for his car through the press of humanity.

MacDonald was even more cheerful when he returned from the palace where he submitted the personnel of his projected coalition government to the King. He said:

"Everything is going very, very well."

CLASH OVER DOLE

The Labor cabinet's fall, it was learned by International News Service, was due solely to a cut in the unemployment dole to which Henderson and a number of other cabinet officers and the trade union council flatly refused to agree.

Collapse of the government followed a two-hour conference at Buckingham Palace with King George, who had broken up his summer vacation at Balmoral Castle in Scotland and returned to London to be in at the death of the Labor government.

"It is all over."

Thus spoke a member of the cabinet when the ministry returned to 10 Downing street. He added:

"We have resigned."

The last few hours saw MacDonald's once staunch band of Laborite supporters fall away from him like beach sands under a tidal-wave. Just exactly how many of the Laborite ministers withdrew their support from the Premier immediately could not be learned. There were at least eight and perhaps 10.

Labor Party May Expel MacDonald From Ranks

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The position of Labor members who join the new government will be considered shortly by the national executive of the Labor party.

It was pointed out today in Labor quarters that only the national executive or a special conference of the party can sanction an official connection of individual members of the party with a new government and that the action of such cabinet members, if they are to represent the party, must be in conformity with the policy of the party. It is doubtful whether the national executive will sanction participation in the government.

Indeed, it is regarded as possible that those who support the new government may be expelled from the Labor party.

Observers say that in such a case, it is highly probable that Arthur Henderson would be the new leader of the party in place of Ramsay MacDonald.

It seemed evident, therefore, that the final result of the present crisis might be to weaken the Labor movement in England for a considerable period, owing to a split in the party.

4 MEN HELD UP, HOMES ROBBED

More than $6,500 loot was obtained by burglars and bandits who staged four holdups and 11 robberies in the city over the week-end.

Lewis Samuels, of 6537 Roosemoor street, was robbed of $600 by two Negroes for whom he stopped while driving in Lilac street, when they waved a flashlight at him early yesterday.

Thomas McClears, of 1165 Termon avenue, was attacked by three men in Painter way late Saturday night and robbed of $30.

Lawrence Elliott, of 7242 Calhoun street, a Green cab driver, was robbed of $8 by an armed Negro.

A brooch valued at $200, a bar pin valued at $15 and a revolver valued at $35 were stolen Saturday night from the home of City Detective John McCullough, at 2825 Murray avenue.

From 10 other homes in the city, clothing, jewelry, silverware and cash, totaling about $5,500 was stolen.

Painter on Tower Hurt by Live Wire

A. W. Staub, of 108 Fourteenth street, Sharpsburg, was burned today when he accidentally came in contact with a live wire while painting a tower at the Duquesne Light Company substation in Dravosburg. He was taken to the Mercy Hospital.

VOTE MACHINE EXHIBITION CONTINUES

Electors in Cities of Third Class and 15 City Wards Will Get Instructions

The County Bureau of Elections, in its campaign to educate the public in the use of the voting machine has demonstrated the machines in 26 of the 32 wards of the city, the various wards of the third-class cities and in 33 of the 66 boroughs and townships, Gilbert C. Cloonan, head of the bureau, said today.

From now until the primaries, the campaign will be concentrated on the three third-class cities and the first 15 wards of the city, the maximum number of wards in which the machines can be used if the manufacturers deliver the 325 they promised to ship here by primary day.

Cloonan said Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong has ordered that every election precinct having more than 300 registered voters within the city and the third-class cities, be provided with two machines to care for the closing hour rush.

Mr. Keaton to Play Fellow Who Grows Up to Find He's Someone Else

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 24.

Latest choice for Buster Keaton's next comedy is a play, "If I Were You," written by none other than P. G. (Hundred Grand) Wodehouse and Guy Bolton.

The piece has nothing to do with the English author's now celebrated trip to Hollywood as it was purchased before he ever signed his contract.

In case Buster makes this nothing is certain these days he will play an American barber who

LATEST GOSSIP

After all Marlene Dietrich may not appear in Emile Zola's "Nana." Joseph von Sternberg tells me he is running up against almost insuperable censorship problems.

"'Nana' is a great novel and I feel an intellectual responsibility to it," he declares. "If I have to make it wishy-washy on the screen I'd rather not make it at all."

If "Nana" falls through, there is no definite alternative.

Marlene Dietrich

Ronald Colman's original contract with Samuel Goldwyn has only a short time to go, but the producer safeguarded himself last year by getting an option on two more pictures in 1932.

Billie Dove undergoes a real awakening in her new picture, "The Age for Love." Somewhere since she made her last pictures, she's found the key to her emotions. It's a great improvement over the coolly beautiful Billie Dove of yore.

"Would it be correct," inquires a correspondent, "to call Pickfair the last stronghold of aristocracy?"

Say now, you lay off Doug and Mary.

Another one of those queer twists of circumstance: Eighteen years ago Roland West, then a Broadway leading man, was called in to head a road company of Jackie Jones. At the first rehearsal Emmett Corrigan, author of the play, listened to West for five minutes and then walked out of the auditorium. Today Corrigan is playing in Corsair and Roland West is the producer. But he hasn't come after walking out yet.

HEIRS AND HEIRESSES

The screen is recognizing the appeal of the Macabre.

At Paramount Irving Pichel is scheduled to play Hugh Walpole's sadistic hero of The Man With Red Hair. And Frederic March will recreate the horrible transformation of Dr. Jekyll to Mr. Hyde.

At Universal James Whale, one of the more distinguished directors is about to start "Frankenstein." As you may know, this is the story of a young scientist who robs graves and patches up the body of a man. Intending to create a superbeing, he mistakenly gets hold of the brain of a criminal. When electrolysis gives the creature life it turns out to be a monster with the strength of 10 men.

Playing the monster will be Boris Karloff. If you saw "The Criminal Code" you will recall him as the convict who shaves Walter Huston. Remember? Huston asked him:

"What are you in for?"

And he replied chillingly:

"For cutting a man's throat."

KNOWS ALL THE ANSWERS

Maybe Will Rogers was peeved or maybe it was a mistake. A scene in his new picture, "Dollar Bill," called for him to enter a room and close the door gently behind him.

Instead he gave it such a slam it almost fell off the hinges. The shot was spoiled.

For a minute Will just stood there. Then he looked up with one of those sheepish grins.

"Well," he drawled, "it's always been my policy to give my boss just a little bit more than I'm paid for."

Playwright

Channing Pollock, playwright, will be represented in the Drama League and Professional Players Subscription program in Pittsburgh by his play, "The House Beautiful."

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(But they keep me kissable)

That though you believe you have been dreaming all night, you have actually been dreaming for about 10 seconds.

That Mrs. Abraham Lincoln was a pro-slaver.

That in ancient times a man who could count up to three was considered a genius. (One—two—three—four!)

That in 1750 a ship captain, arriving in port, met and kissed his wife in the street, for which he was arrested and whipped! (In Boston, of course!)

That the first sprinkle of rain is unclean!

That during a Chinese-acted play, a stage hand will bring on a chair if the star seems weary or a drink of water if he's thirsty.

That people who replace the phone receiver on the hook upside down are not to be trusted.

That speakeasy mirrors are frosted with three-quarters of a glass of stale beer plus Epsom salts, applied with a sponge.

That Polly Moran, who is packing houses here, had her nose lifted, but is just as pretty as ever. (Polly like a wisecracker?)

That the first boxing gloves were made of leather and iron, studded with short spikes. (Such people!)

That Rudy Vallee is left-handed and Babe Ruth has flat feet.

That a pretty 19-year-old girl walked into Central Park the other day and her manner attracted a cop, who followed her slowly and watched her from behind a tree. She was so starved she ate grass!

That the production of oil in Cal. decreases when the tide is out.

That if the movie theater is too dark it's bad for your orbs.

That Canada fines you if you bring likker into it from the United States. One lad was fined $107 for one pint!

That Buenos Aires has more millionaires than N. Y. C.

That Hollywood butlers have formed a union and a wag says: "God help the rich—the poor can open their own doors!"

That it was an ancient Roman law that no one should make a woman his heir. (Oh, I read, I read!)

That in the olden times the Franks debated in church whether or not a woman was a human being. (Well, what do you think?)

That the grandest retort was Cato's, who, when asked why he had no statue erected in his honor, niftied: "I would much rather have them ask me why I had no statue, than why I had one."

That it was Hayden who discovered that the most difficult thing in the world is to manage the temper of your friends when you first burst into public repute and leave them behind.

That the stone crab is reborn if you throw its claws back into the Florida waters, to hear William Gaxton tell it.

That there is a Broadway in England. (Realleh?)

That you can catch fish under the Sahara Desert sands!

That in Portugal where millions of sardines are canned each month, you cannot buy them.

That Napoleon's sister posed in the nude for artists.

That the president of the world's largest playing card company doesn't play cards, and the director of the mint gets paid by check!

That William Wrigley, whose name is stuck all over the nation (he spends six million a year on advertising), had to tell a Miami traffic cop three times how to spell it, according to the Pathfinder.

That this is getting to be sort of an "Agony Column" like the one in London, considering that a lass at the St. Moritz writes: "Please put a line in the col'm saying: 'Mitchel, Beastie is in town.'"

And that there are so many people writing columns these days you wonder where all the readers come from.

SCHOOL TO OPEN AFTER 3 YEARS

The Obey School in Crafton Heights will reopen September 1, after having been closed since 1928 because of an insufficient number of pupils. Permission to reopen the school was granted Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh public schools, at the last meeting of the School Board, terminating a three-year argument in which residents near the school contended it should never have been closed.

About 70 children will enter the school, according to Mrs. Minnie G. Roberts, one of the reopening advocates and a teacher in the open-air sessions on the school lawn last September. Only two rooms will be used and only the lower grades will be taught.

After the school was closed some of the children were forced to walk more than a mile to another school. Signers of a former petition which was refused declared.

The opening day for county schools outside of the city is September 8. Labor Day will be a holiday in the city schools.

TRADES UNIONS TO HOLD OUTING

Arrangements have been completed for a Labor Day celebration by the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union at West View Park. P. J. McGrath, secretary of the union, said the event will mark a revival of trades union activities here.

According to McGrath, the officers of the affiliated locals are planning for a large turnout of members on this occasion. The Musicians' Union has offered to furnish free music for the affair, and other organizations have all promised to help make the event a success.

The program will include baseball games and a marathon race. The speakers scheduled include P. T. Fagan, president of the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union; Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America; John P. Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, and E. C. Davison, general secretary of the International Association of Machinists.

Over every luncheon and tea table where society folks convene I'll wager most of the chatter is of the approaching smart weddings of late August and early September. Nothing is more exciting than a wedding and wedding plans, and no one lovelier than a bride, and how appropriate that she should be extensively feted before her marriage.

One of the smartest weddings of the season will be that of attractive Nancy Allderdice, as you know, on Monday, August 31, when she'll wed Leonard S. Mudge.

And there are so many entertainments planned for her I hardly know where to begin in telling you of them.

Betty McKay and Harriet Pirkes, who are to be bridesmaids are to give the spinster dinner honoring Nancy on Saturday in the Pirkes home. The same evening Edmund W. Mudge Jr., brother of the bridegroom-elect who will be his best man, will give the bachelor dinner in the University Club.

Laura Evans who'll be another bridesmaid is giving a tea for the bride-elect in her home on Sunday.

The wedding breakfast will be given in the Fox Chapel Golf Club by George P. Rhodes Jr. (Chairman) K. Hubbard and George W. Wickhoff, who'll be among the ushers I mentioned some time ago that Joan Diehl, another member of the bridal party will give the rehearsal dinner in her home Saturday evening.

Honor Bride

On Friday Frances Forsythe and Mrs. George L. Craig Jr. will give a progressive dinner. The first service will be held at the home of Frances parents the James Magees of Forbes street, and the final one at Mrs. Craig's home in Kipling road. Only the immediate members of the bridal party will be the guests at the Magee home. There will be about 25 guests.

Several prominent Pittsburgh folks attended a smart wedding at Watch Hill where so many of our smart set sojourn for the summer, which took place Saturday. They included Mrs. William S. Moorhead, the Richard B. Mellons, Althea Robinson, daughter of the William Christopher Robinsons of Ridge avenue, and Dr. and Mrs. William J. Holland.

The bride was Sally Thacher, daughter of the Thomas D. Thachers, of New York and Washington, and she became the bride of George L. Storm, son of the late George E. Storm, and Mrs. Frederick K. Ruprecht, of Greenwich. The wedding was the first to be held at the resort in four years, and took place in the Watch Hill Chapel, at 4:30 o'clock, with the Rev. Dr. Arthur Brasford, of Providence, R. I., and the Rev. T. Guthrie Speers, of Baltimore, officiating.

The chancel was massed with cibotium ferns, and the altar was banked with tall Kenta palms and ferns, blue delphinium and yellow gladioli. On either side of the prie dieu were tall tapers in candelabras, and the altar rail was banked with blue and yellow flowers. The nave of the chapel was decorated with southern smilax, hung from pillar to pillar, over which was an arch of cedar branches. The aisles were bordered with gladioli and delphinium.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of cream satin having a long train edged with old point lace from her mother's wedding gown. Her veil of tulle cascaded from a crown of old rose point, and she carried white orchids and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Mary Thatcher, sister of the bride, wore a gown of yellow mousseline de soie with a matching picture hat and carried blue delphinium and yellow gladioli. The bridesmaids all wore gowns of blue mousseline de soie with matching picture hats and carried blue delphinium and yellow gladioli.

Carried Orchids

They included Clarissa Wardwell, Constance Sullivan, Alida Milliken and Virginia Storm, all of New York; Elizabeth Boies, of Scranton, Pa.; Josephine Post, of Hartford, Conn.; Elizabeth Chilton, San Diego, Chile, and Louise Driggs, of Waterbury, Conn. Charles G. B. Murphy, of Detroit, was best man, and as ushers were Dr. Robert Wylie Lee Bradley, Wilder Hobson, Joseph A. Thomas and Lee Mallory, of New York; Charles D. Harvey, Lake Forest, Ill.; Irving F. Peck, Jr., Derby, Conn.; Richard Duane, Hartford, Conn.; Alfred S. Foote, Englewood, N. J.; Oliver C. Billings, Morristown, N. J.; Thomas Thacher, Jr., of New York and Washington.

After the reception the Storms left on the yacht Solana, owned by the William Christopher Robinsons, of Pittsburgh.

The night preceding the wedding, an informal dinner dance was held at the Misquamicut Golf Club for the bridal party, and the wedding breakfast was held at the club.

East Liberty Church Will Hold Reunion

The annual reunion of the members of Corpus Christi Church, Lincoln avenue, will be held tomorrow and Wednesday on the church lawn. E. V. Clair is general chairman of the reunion. Wednesday afternoon is to be marked by a large program of sports, under the direction of James Keenan.

Din Brings Protest After 22 Years

HAVERSTRAW, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—The patience of Richard W. Oldfield, is at an end. For 22 years he has lived near the railroad. Thousands of locomotives have passed near his home. Now he is complaining about the noise of whistles and the village trustees are investigating.

Ingram Girl Will Marry Saturday

Miss Anna Kathryn May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Edwards May, of Ingram, has chosen her bridal party. She will become the bride of Arnold O. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Anderson, of Ely, Minn., on Saturday, in the First Baptist Church of Crafton, at 3:30 o'clock, with the Rev. Ronald O. Hudson officiating.

Miss May has chosen Miss Mary Heckman to be maid of honor and as bridesmaids, Miss Arline K. Burg, Miss Katherine M. Russel and Miss Helen Koenig. Miss Marie Lane will play the wedding music. Lowell A. Anderson, of Minnesota, will be his brother's best man, and the ushers will include Kenneth Maxham, of Hagerstown, Md., Merl Hadman, and Erick Berglund, of Philadelphia.

Bridal Party

There will be a reception in the May home after the wedding, after which Mr. Anderson and his bride will leave for a brief honeymoon, later to live in the East End.

The bride-elect is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta, her fiance is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and a member of Kappa Eta Kappa.

ESTELLE BEGINS STAGE TOUR

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 24.—(INS.)—Estelle Taylor, estranged wife of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, today was en route for St. Louis to fulfill a vaudeville engagement.

As she boarded the train Miss Taylor declared that she "did not know anything about Jack Dempsey."

Her chief concern, she indicated, was her two months engagement, which it is reputed will pay her $3,000 a week. The screen star was asked:

"What if Jack should win the heavyweight crown?"

"More power to him," she laughed.

Radio Equipment On 'Old Ironsides'

BOSTON.—(INS.)—The old Frigate Constitution better known as "Old Ironsides" when reconstructed at Charlestown Navy Yard here, was refitted exactly as in the days when she sailed the main, and therefore carries no dynamo for electric lights. She obtains lights from oil lamps, and current from her convoy, the minesweeper Grebe. But one thing aboard now that the old officers of the man-o'-war did not have, is a radio. A new model of a powerful battery set was installed in the quarters of the officers for their entertainment.

Prisoner's Duet Unwanted in Court

BOSTON.—(INS.)—Praying to save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is noble, decided Judge William Day in South Boston District Court, but when a prisoner joins a court crier that's something else again. When a salutation of "hear ye" was begun at the opening of court, Daniel Driscoll, 54, of Dorchester, upon a charge of intoxication, joined in the prayer, two husky officers were needed to quiet him. Judge Day ordered Driscoll back to a police cell.

CHAIN STORES PLAN FARMS

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Chain stores are planning to go into the farming business on a gigantic scale, Prof. Walter B. Pitkin, of Columbia University, says in an article in The Country Home, a magazine.

Already, he says, one chain store company is sending an agent around the country with funds to buy or lease thousands of acres.

"The idea," Prof. Pitkin writes, "is to supply chain stores with food from chain farms. The experiment will first be tested on a small scale. If it works, there will be available millions of dollars for the acquisition of a veritable empire."

The same magazine quotes Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, as predicting that within a few years multi-million dollar farming corporations will be coming to Wall street for large scale financing.

FASHION REVIVES RIBBON EFFECTS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—Ribbon ties itself up with the mode very nicely since a sash seems to be the standard equipment on almost every frock that has any claims to sweet femininity. What with sashes, bows, loop-the-loop draperies and such, we are rapidly taking a dive into the sartorial past. And should we attend a fancy dress ball this winter, all we shall do is to wear a draped dress with its flounces and rippling petticoat effect and come as our grandmother without committing any sartorial anachronism. We are all watching the metamorphosis of the mode with keen interest and in the meantime are faring forth of nights wearing sweetly feminine frocks with nice ribbon sashes, bows and everything.

TO SHOW how important the ribbon sash has become, we are forwarding you a sketch of a Vionnet model designed for sultry summer evenings and calculated to make even a salamander feel cool. It is of fine pale pink net. The extremely wide, flaring skirt is embroidered in shades of deeper pink floss. The pattern of the embroidery is a sort of wild rose with trailing vines looped in garlands round the skirt with a scattering of single, falling petals here and there. Deep pink satin ribbon, very soft and crushable, is drawn closely across the back of the bodice from each under-arm seam and crossed to wrap about the waist and tie in a large bow at the side.

ARABS PROTEST JEWISH ARMS

JERUSALEM, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Protesting against the use of sealed armories in outlying Jewish villages, the entire Arab population of Palestine was on strike today, and authorities feared disturbances.

Military authorities have taken charge in Nabulus, where a British police officer and six Arabs were injured in a clash last night. The Arabs hurled stones at the police, and the latter fired on their aggressors when they refused to disperse.

Armored cars and troop reinforcements have been sent for. There has been rioting there for several days, and a few arrests, but the country as a whole has been quiet.

Are You Suffering From a Case of the Moans?

Something has put Myria on the spot!

Nor Hard Times—

She's neither homeless nor hungry nor jilted or lovelorn—

Quite to the contrary, she's pretty and "has everything." Yet she's wretched. Nothing "seems worth while any more."

"I can't understand it," she moans. "I just seem to have gone sour on life and everything in it. Everything bores me."

Ever have those symptoms? Want to know what ails you? Listen . . .

"Dear Sally:

"As a last resource I am writing to you. I usually settle my own problems, but this is getting beyond me.

LOSING INTEREST

"No, my trouble has nothing to do with men or love. It just concerns me, myself. And it has me going around in circles. I can just about sum it up in one word: boredom. Nothing seems worth while any more. I used to get pleasure out of living . . . out of entertainments and parties, but I can't seem to any more. I would just as soon stay home.

"People used to take to me because of my interest in them . . . an interest which I have completely lost. My life is getting to be just one big void.

"It's funny how a person can just turn sour on life for no good reason. That's what I have done. I have everything I want, materially. I have no cares or worries, outside of this terrible emptiness. I have good looks and a pleasing personality. You'd think I would be happy if anyone ever was. But—or, well—I just can't understand it.

"Judging from your column, you are pretty much of a philosopher. Maybe you can help me see my way through this malady, whatever it is.

"What is wrong with me? Why can't I enjoy the things I have, or the good times that come my way any more?

MYRIA.

What ails you, Myria?

The same thing that ails scores of other bitter, fussing, dissatisfied femmes, my dear. You put your finger on it yourself when you said: "I have everything." You haven't enough to do. You haven't anything to wish for or fight for or to feel thrilled and uncertain about. Things have come so easily to you that all the chance and adventure have been smothered out of your life. You've had so much cake that your teeth are "on edge."

NEEDS A JOB

What'll you do about it? How'll you cure your sick soul? What you need is a job, youngster. Not an easy job that you can slide through easily and glibly as you've slid through life so far . . . but one that'll put you on your toes . . . one that'll challenge every ounce of pep and pluck you've got to put it over. One that you'll have to hustle to keep . . . one that'll make you forget Myria and her moans.

For just now Myria and her moans are disturbing your whole scene. You're going in a circle around Myria. Stop it, honey, for if you don't you'll be more wretched than you've ever dreamed of being, before you're much older. None of us can live in ourselves and for ourselves, and be happy.

TRY TO HELP

You're no longer interested in people? That's not surprising, since it's entirely likely that you were only interested in them for what they could give you. Get away from that idea. Begin to look around and wonder what you can give them. Begin to wonder about their lives and their hurts and hopes and dreams. If you'll do that, you'll find they're more interesting and fascinating than anything you've ever thought about before . . . and they'll give you a new grip on living.

Fay King Tells Why We Have So Many Hermits and Rounders in World

By FAY KING.

It is because different persons react differently to like sorrows, disappointments and unhappy love affairs, that we have hermits and rounders in the world.

Some find consolation for their remembrances in seclusion and solitude.

Others seek to drown their unhappy memories in the noise and hilarity of crowds and drain the glass.

One of the loneliest characters I ever knew had lost the man she was engaged to marry. But his death did not change the plans they had made together. She made the little home they had hoped to share. I think she was happier so than had she married someone else.

Lillian Outlines an Idyllic Plan for Madge

Lillian looked at me curiously as I told her that I would adopt any plan she might suggest whereby I could follow my "career" and not neglect my husband and children.

"I had hoped for better things from you," she said. "Just what do you mean by neglect?"

I knew Lillian's views from long association with her. She is a feminist, though not a rabid one, but I answered her stoutly, nevertheless.

"Why, not seeing to their comfort," I said, "and not having time to visit with them whenever they want me."

She threw herself back in her chair until it creaked.

"I thought so," she said. "Translated into plain words, it means being a valet for Dicky, a combination nursemaid and governess for Junior, and a dabbler in bottles and diapers for the baby."

"But all involving duties which have to be done," I pointed out.

"Not by a woman with your talent," she persisted. "Let's take 'em one by one. When Dicky made his daily visits to the hospital, did he have the wrong neckties, and were not his buttons all on?"

I laughed in spite of myself.

"He was absolutely impeccable," I said.

"And were Junior and Roderick run down at the heels or unwashed behind the ears when they came home; and had they acquired any new swear words other than those they deplorably hear from Dicky and Harry?"

"That's because you were on the job," I pointed out.

"No, it's because your training and Katherine's have borne fruit," she said triumphantly. "I didn't have a bit of trouble with them. But we're only skittering around the edges of this thing when we ought to be getting down to the real nub of it. Here's my position:——"

She stopped, drew a long breath, then went on—tapping the forefinger of one hand into the other to emphasize her points.

"The way things have gone from time immemorial," she said, "there's always some woman in every home who bears the brunt of everything, has the whole responsibility of the domestic cosmos on her shoulders. That's because every other member of the family is a shirker of sorts. They don't mean to be, nine-tenths of the time it isn't their fault, they aren't trained to be self-reliant and it's usually because the mother of the family hugs her chains or is too lazy mentally to train her family. But when the mother is removed by death or illness or some other cause, you usually see a great light descend and the responsibility settles on all shoulders."

"It's all wrong," she said, and I knew by her tone that she was indeed seated firmly upon her "hobby horse" and riding it vigorously. "The family should be a co-operative institution, with every member of it trained to stand on his or her own feet."

"Yes, milady Soviet," I interrupted her, "but will you kindly explain just how I'm going to make over this family?"

"That's the easiest thing I know," she replied airily, with a wave of the hand. "Have your father build you a bungalow back in the orchard, or on top of the hill if you want to go farther away. It won't be an expensive proposition. There are stones and logs, too, on this end of the island and it won't be a winter proposition, a fireplace will take care of you in the autumn and spring. Sam Ticer and Jerry with some men to help them will throw it together in no time. You'll only need one big room, with most of it screened windows, and a bath. Fix it up with your books and desk and typewriter and that miniature theater Phil gave you, and then—keep it absolutely sacrosanct. Nobody, not even your nearest and dearest, must ever go anywhere near that door, unless for the gravest emergency, or by your very express invitation, and those ought to be rare. In that way you can keep your working hours absolutely sacred and emerge only for meals, if you wish, or have trays sent over. In midwinter, in the city, I can recommend nothing better than a hotel suite, sitting room, bedroom and bath, with your name on a private register."

"It sounds attractive," I said wistfully, remembering the interruptions while I was working out the first two acts of my play and visualizing the idyllic working studio she had planned.

"But impractical, I suppose you're saying inside of you," she said with exasperation in her tone. "What's wrong with the scheme? It simply would be release from petty details. You wouldn't be separated from your family. When you emerged from your work, you'd be a treat to your husband and son instead of a commonplace, and you'd be able to have a beautiful comradeship with them. You probably could plan your work so that you'd do it generally while Dicky was doing his, and while Junior and Roderick were at school, so that you'd have your leisure hours together. I imagine if Mother Graham and Katie were given regular doses of chloroform, they could be trained not to interrupt you every time the telephone rang or the bathtub overflowed."

"But, Lillian," I said, "you forget the baby."

"What's the matter with Katherine?" she demanded, "or," looking at me shrewdly, "are you, perchance, afraid your small daughter may learn to love Katherine better than she does you?"

Surprise Party Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am confronted with a problem that is very hard for me to decide. Your column has been of great help to me and I have started a "scrap book" by cutting out the questions and answers and pasting them in a book, but the question which I am troubled about is not to be found.

1. I am invited to a surprise party and I would like to know if it is proper to give a gift. If so, please tell me what would be appropriate for a girl of 17.

2. I would like to know if a rayon voile dress would be correct for me to wear? L. B.

Welcome to the column, and thank you for those pleasant words of appreciation.

1. I don't see any real reason why you should take a gift, but you may find out that this is what each guest is planning to do. And, if you do, of course you too should plan to take one. A box of flowers, if you wish, or a corsage, or a book. All of these are safe presents, especially appropriate if you don't know the girl very well. A lovely handkerchief, plain or monogramed, a dance handkerchief, perhaps, which always looks so gifty. Or a purse pencil. Or a fountain pen. Or a charming novelty vanity case. Or a purse, for daytime, or an evening bag. A necklace. A scarf. A desk accessory.

2. Yes.

On Lighting Cigarets

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been informed that it is correct, when lighting a cigaret, to use the match first then offer the match to your guest or friend, thus the second person does not receive the sulphur fumes. This sounds silly and absurd and although this new mode of etiquette is traveling the circles, I still light the match and offer my guest the first light.

What do you think?

GLADYS.

I agree with you . . . we should light the other person's cigaret first.

Physical Examination Advised in Neuralgia

Recently I wrote about a painful condition known as "tic-douloureux," or neuralgia of the face. Today I want to tell you still more about neuralgia.

Dr. Copeland

Neuralgia is the word used to describe pain in a nerve. Such pain usually runs along the course of the affected nerve.

Neuralgic pain is a severe, darting, burning, sticking or throbbing pain. It may be constant, or it may come and go.

Facial neuralgia, which I mentioned the other day, is of a severe type, involving one or more of the nerves of the face. There are, of course, other varieties of neuralgia, involving any part of the body.

The cause of neuralgia usually can be traced to an infection. Yet it is true that members of certain families are more subject to this disease than others. It affects women more than men. Children rarely suffer from neuralgia.

Neuralgia often presents itself as a first sign in certain acute diseases. This is the case sometimes, for example, in typhoid fever. Exposure to cold may bring on an attack of neuralgia in a susceptible person. Usually before the attack, there is a tingling and an uneasy sensation in the part of the body which soon will be more violently affected.

The pain is localized in one nerve or in a group of nerves. It is peculiar that a neuralgic pain usually affects only one side of the body. Sudden movements or muscular exertion of the part involved are likely to be painful.

During a severe spasm of pain there may be marked twitching of the muscles. Such attacks may last a few minutes, or for many hours.

Unfortunately, recurrences are not unusual. Indeed, the attacks may occur after definite intervals, perhaps every day at the same hour, or every second or third day.

If it is really true that neuralgia is an irritation or inflammation of a nerve and that this irritation comes from some infection, it is important that the infection be removed. The source of the infection can only be determined by a very thorough physical examination. This examination should include the teeth, sinuses, tonsils, intestines, gall bladder, kidneys and generative organs.

Often the cause can be attributed entirely to infected teeth. If the teeth are infected and removed, the cause for the irritation is eliminated and the attacks of pain do not occur again.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Don't let any fussy old auntie tell you that washing injures the hair. It doesn't, if soap is good grade and the rinsing is thorough, accomplished by means of a spray and a strong current of water. Oily hair needs to be washed every 10 days because the greasy exudations from the scalp attract atmospheric dust and lay dandruff on the scalp.

That indefinable quality known as chic is something all the gals are after, but they'll never acquire it unless they learn to carry themselves splendidly. With bad posture the most beautiful robe lacks expression; it never looks distinguished. Too bad that so many of the dear femmes center their ambitions on skin calcimine and lip pigment, when a strong erect backbone, a light step, graceful movement and perfect posture mean so much in the composition of a lovely woman.

Oil your finger nails; they'll feel better and look better. It is frequent washing of the hands and general dryness that cause hang-nails, break down nail structure, put painful gashes in the flesh at the nail base, dim that roseate glimmer that should make finger sheaths attractive to the eye. Use olive oil, lanolin, cold cream or a commercial preparation designed for the purpose of keeping finger nails in tip-top order. Be wise in the choice of toilet soap. Dry hands thoroughly after washing.

Office workers who type all day or sit at desks are victims of spread amidship. They need exercise and should get it by one means or another. If no other opportunity offers, let them walk part way to work in the morning, or take a long walk at night. Wage-earners should flirt with Al Frescoe, be out-of-doors every possible moment.

Household Hints

A hot cloth wrapped around the brick or can of ice cream will help the cream to slide out easily. This will also help in removing jelly from a mold.

The best way to warm over biscuits and have them just as good as when fresh is to put them in a pan and set the pan in another pan containing water. Heat for a few minutes in a hot oven.

Never work in a kitchen where the gas oven burners and several other burners are going full tilt without having ventilation in the room. The air need not be directed on the stove but air there should be. One lighted burner is said to consume as much air as four adults.

It takes just a bit of talent to make dainty place cards at home. Just paint a narrow strip of gold around the edge of a plain oblong card and write the guest's name in the center in gold ink. They look particularly well if your china and glassware happen to be gold-edged.

2 MORE BOMBS ROCK HAVANA

HAVANA, Aug. 24 (AP)—Two more bombs shook Havana's downtown district today causing serious damage to the structures.

Government officials said the bombs were placed by Communists rather than rebels and ordered an intensive search for infernal machines. At San Iago de Cuba they unearthed a bomb factory and confiscated 25 12-pound bombs and 80 pounds of dynamite after killing two men and placing 16 under arrest.

The government announced that a reward of $5,000 will be paid to any one giving information leading to the arrest of the bombers.

Except for the bombings and the raid at Santiago, Cuba was generally quiet today, the whole country apparently considering the rebellion definitely quelled.

TUNNEL BLAST PERILS FARMS

ELLENSBURG, Wash., Aug. 24 (AP)—Water flowing to 30,000 acres of irrigated land was stopped today through a break in a tunnel under the Yakima River which officials suspect may have been caused by a dynamite bomb.

The tunnel, built at a cost of $1,000,000 and opened two and a half months ago, was being pumped dry to permit an inspection.

A year awakened Caretaker R. C. Dodge and his wife early yesterday, and on rushing out of doors they said geysers of water shot with terrific force through rocks and earth over the shaft.

R. D. Williams, construction engineer, said that a bomb was the only explanation he could give of the break.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

THIS LITTLE STORY concerns Charley the Bum. And I will tell it—not because it is sad—but because it could not have come to pass on any street other than Broadway.

Charley the Bum is possibly 70 years of age. White hair. Soft, ragged hat. Big shoes, badly worn. An old sack suit. No socks. Eyes that sparkle every once in so often. Mills Hotel. You know the type.

He wasn't always a bum. Not much. At one time Charley was one of the foremost church singers in the Midwest. He says so himself. And a check-up shows that he does not lie. Making his home in Chicago at that time, his services were always in demand. But that was some 20 years ago—perhaps 30.

For some reason or other Charley took the wrong road. He never would say why. It might have been his wife. Or a child that went astray. In fact, it could have been for one of a dozen reasons. But no matter for what reason that he strayed, it happened. And he hit the chutes like a Coney Island roller coaster.

And he drifted. And drifted. And drifted. . . .

There has functioned on Broadway, for the last two or three years, an organization of men interested in things theatrical. This organization has been called various things by various people at various times—so I will refer to it merely as the club.

The club meets every day for luncheon. Men, nearly all of them successful, arise and discuss things with much gusto. Neighbors are knocked, clubs are created, theaters are erected, people are panned—and the respective members return to their offices with nothing accomplished, but hoarse and happy.

Now you have a fairly good idea of the club. And the reason for its existence. And it was here that Charley made his appearance not so long ago.

It happened one rainy afternoon. One of the members, having nothing better to do, was standing outside the restaurant when he spied Charley the Bum stumbling past. Things were dull that rainy afternoon and the man who had been standing outside thought perhaps this ragged individual might be able to tell them a story. Surely, if he'd talk about himself he could tell a good one. Anyway, it was worth a trial. So he was brought into the place.

Ten minutes later Charley stood in the center of the floor and commenced to talk. At the outset he was nervous. But when he saw that his audience was listening to him, he became more confident.

In a thin, rasping voice, he told of this and that. His early life. His success. The sudden change. Liquor. More liquor. Finally, too much liquor. Until now—at the age of 70—a failure and a derelict. With no money. No relatives. No friends. No home. And, what was much worse, no hope.

He talked on and on. And there was none who interrupted him. They pitied this poor bum. And as he told his story in his own simple manner, their hearts went out to him.

And when he was through the members got together. And the club, never noted for any extreme generosity, decided to make Charley the Bum a little happier.

They gave him money. They sat him down to a meal while they rummaged through lockers for clothes. And with a pair of shoes from one of the members and a pair of trousers from another, a clean shirt from a third, Charley was at least pretty decently outfitted when he was ready to leave. They told him to come back again.

"Whenever you want something, Charley," they told him, "don't be afraid to ask. You come right to us and we'll help you. You deserve it, Charley. So call on us any time."

Charley told them he would. He thanked them one and all. And he left the club.

Last week, Charley came again to the club. Hesitatingly he approached the president of the organization.

"Can I ask a favor?" he said, as if afraid.

The president looked up.

"You've asked a lot of favors lately, Charley," he said, "and. . ."

"I know I have," responded Charley, "but this is the last. Honest. And it means everything in the world to me. Please. Please!"

The president rose. Charley, he told his fellow-members, was going to ask one last favor. Would they give him their attention?

They leaned back, their eyes on Charley. What could the old guy want now? Hadn't they given him money? Didn't they give him some clothes? He had a room in the Mills Hotel. Now, what more could he ask?

"I'll tell you, boys," Charley was saying, "and I hope you won't be angry with me. I don't mean no harm by it at all. You're the only friends I got in the world. You've all been swell to me. And don't think I'm not thankful for what you've done.

"But I'm not satisfied, boys. Not satisfied at all. And I'll tell you why. It's because I'm lonesome where I am. I'm too old to be a good bum. And people don't want to talk to me very much any more. And I'm lonesome.

"That's why I ask you this favor. It's the last favor I'll ask you, boys. But if you can do it for me, it'll mean so much. Would you boys help me get into the poorhouse? Everybody's equal there. And I'd have lots of company.

"Will you help me, boys? Will you? Just get me into the poorhouse. Just this last favor. And if you'll do it, I'll be the happiest man in the world . . ."

NEW NETWORK PLANNED :-: McNamee to Broadcast Craftsman's Awards :-: FIFI DORSAY ON AIR

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

FIFTEEN CITIES and towns in Western Pennsylvania would have radio stations ranging in power from 10 to 25 watts under the Communications Radio protest now being considered by the Federal Radio Commission at the suggestion of C. R. Cummings of Williamsport, Pa. The stations would be located in Allquippa, Ambridge, Beaver Falls, Braddock, Charleroi, Clairton, Greensburg, Homestead, McKeesport, Meadville, New Castle, New Kensington, Sharon, Uniontown and Vandergrift. . . . Cummings plans a new network of 267 stations to extend over 16 eastern states . . . it is hardly likely that his request will be granted, in which case Cummings plans to bus up small stations now operating in or near these towns . . . Ferdinand Stochman, of 231 Wasdell street, may receive the thrill of a lifetime tonight by tuning over the NBC coast-to-coast hook-up when Ferdinand is in Detroit representing the Pittsburgh Sun Telegraph as one of 107 winners in the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild . . . four of the winners are to be awarded scholarships to universities and will be ushered to the microphone at 9:30 by Graham McNamee . . . WCAE is the Pittsburgh station . . . Fifi Dorsay, wistful French artist, is the center of attraction on KDKA at 11:15 . . .

Louis Kaufman is not going away for his health, but is staying in the city to take care of an increasing law business . . . he has given up his Pacific Coast vacation plan . . . we met Lou at Fifth and Grant this morning . . . he looked as healthy as Gene Tunney.

Question a Day:

Our bridge club didn't even meet last week after someone brought up an argument about radio. Unless we have some definite information to guide us this Wednesday, we might as well dissolve. Please help us out. Did DeForest of Marconi invent radio and how much are all the stations in Pittsburgh worth? Mrs. W. B., Uniontown, Pa.

Answer — Guglielmo Marconi invented radio. Lee DeForest invented the radio vacuum tube. The five Pittsburgh stations would sell for about $2,500,000 —if they could be bought!

Dave Rubinoff, dance maestro, comes to a downtown theater as guest conductor the week of Friday, September 18 . . .

We never realized what a tough job it must be impersonating Floyd Gibbons until we heard John S. Young batting for the adventurer Saturday night. . . . John started out fine, but was ready for the showers at the five-minute mark . . . at that, he was a splendid substitute . . .

Irene and Billy Hardy, Pittsburgh girls, clicked beautifully with their piano-organ duets . . . There was particular charm in the way they played Meditation from Massenet's "Thais" . . .

"Tom Manning's description of Cleveland games at home over WTAM are as vivid as though one were sitting in the grand stand," enthuses Homer Jackson, of Monessen, Pa. "Let's start a campaign to have him announce the world series" . . . don't worry about the world series, Homer.

BING CROSBY

The Pacific Coast crooner of torch songs scored a bull's eye Saturday when he nicked William S. Paley's treasury for $1,500 a week in a new series of CBS programs.

. . . Manning is a protege of John Royal, big boss at NBC . . . Here's the streak: Bing Crosby sold . . . William S. Paley, president of CBS, heard one of Crosby's records while on board ship going overseas . . . he cabled his artists' department to get busy . . . Crosby signed up Saturday for $1,500 per week . . . at this rate the Pacific Coast crooner of torch ballads is to receive $15 a minute for six daily broadcasts of 15 minutes each . . .

Sophie Braslau is to do a series of Sunday night programs over NBC-WCAE starting September 6 . . .

NBC has added WFBR, Baltimore, to its red network . . .

Bill Roberts, of the WCAE String Trio, has prepared a special farewell program for Fred Webber this week . . . three of Fred's favorites — "Liebestraum," "In a Monastery Garden" with chimes and Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in G Minor" . . .

Senator James J. Davis introduces Vice President Curtis on WJAS at 9:45 tonight . . .

Songs of the rivers are to be played and sung by Gladys Rice and ensemble over WCAE Wednesday night at 8:30, from aboard the S. S. "Berkshire," world's largest river steamer . . .

Out of town—The "Heidelberg Melodies," over WBBM at 9 and Bobby Meeker, over WBBM WABC at midnight.

Fashion scouts who have trailed Tony Wons around the studios report that he has never been seen wearing other than a gray suit . . .

Square this with what you hear . . . what you read . . . what you believe

NOWADAYS you read and hear every kind of thing about cigarettes. But when you try to square some of it with your own common-sense and experience, a lot of it just doesn't "square"!

What smokers want to know about a cigarette is, "How good is it?"

And when it comes to that, cigarettes are just as good and just as pure as the materials from which they're made.

In making Chesterfield, we use only riper, milder, sweeter-tasting tobaccos—the best that money can buy—and pure cigarette paper—the purest that can be made. Our chemists rigidly test for cleanliness and purity all materials used in the manufacture of Chesterfield. In our factories even the air is washed, and changed every 4½ minutes.

Everything that goes into Chesterfield is the best that money can buy or that science knows about.

"Good . . . they've got to be good," we say about CHESTERFIELD—and we mean it! And that's something you can square with everything you've ever read, or heard—or know—about this good cigarette!

Electric Wire Kills Girl in Auto Wreck

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Virginia Cortero, 35, of New York City, lost her life when she gabbed a live electric power wire to pull herself from a wrecked automobile a mile west of Harris' Corners, in Wyoming County. The car in which she rode had been sideswiped by a car traveling in the opposite direction. The machine left the road and overturned against a pole. The pole snapped, causing the wire to break. Miss Cortero had not been injured in the automobile accident.

Woman Falls Dead At School Reunion

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 24.—Miss Annie Duvall, 72, living near Claysville, dropped dead while attending a reunion of teachers and former students of the old Union School, near Brownsville, which was held on the John C. Murphy farm, three miles south of Washington. She leaves two brothers, S. C. and Eugene Duvall, and a sister, Mrs. J. W. Barnes, all of Pittsburgh.

The Loud Speaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Broadcasters have a good deal to say about their fan letters, point with pride to the vast stocks of it that pour in daily. But you never hear anything about pan mail. They must receive great gobs of it.

Listeners are harder to please today than they were two years ago. The broadcasters have spoiled them, have given them sensation upon sensation, have penetrated their ears with the world's finest music from the world's finest vocalists and instrumentalists, have treated them to a dazzling parade of notable news and sports events, have brought to their easy chairs most of the stars of the Broadway heavens.

Listeners, as a consequence, have become dissatisfied with anything but the best. They clamor continuously for the best, and the radio caliphs are hard pressed to supply it continuously. Mediocrity does filter in. It has to under the circumstances, that the best may be appreciated when it is aired.

John W. Public, however, continues to protest, continues to keep the caliphs on their toes in an attempt to turn his anger into affection. Right now a sample of this anger reaches our polished walnut from Joseph A. Banks, 1238 East Thirty-first street, New York City. Says Banks:

"It is evident to all who follow the factory run of programs that the makers of them are a lazy lot of rascals whose acquaintance with modern light music is limited to Victor Herbert, Gilbert and Sullivan and Johann Strauss. If the musical directors will dig back to the comic operas between 1850 and 1900 they will find music that is away ahead of anything now written—operas given by Duff, McCaull and Aronson, the old Boston Ideals, some of Hoyt's farce comedies (of which the Bowery song alone seems to be known to them), some of the music of 'Adonis', 'Evangeline' and 'The Corsair.' Such music would give relief from the eternal sameness that is now prevalent."

A savage Indian tribe was deterred from attacking the expedition by a parley that resulted in the Americans exhibiting a "Krazy Kat" motion picture cartoon comedy that threw the aborigines into gales of laughter.

Capt. Gray caught a sailfish weighing 180 pounds, surpassing the previous world's record of 177 pounds.

2 ESCAPE DEATH IN PHARMACY GAS BLAST

Leak Blamed as Men Are Showered by Debris; Roof Torn Off, Glass Shattered

Two men had narrow escapes from death early today when an explosion, believed caused by escaping gas, wrecked the drug store of John H. Phillips, at 1400 Beaver avenue, North Side. Damage to the building and contents was estimated by the owner at $5,000.

Phillips and Harold McCurry, 21, of 1402 Beaver avenue, an employe, were in the store turning off the lights when the explosion occurred. Phillips was slightly burned by a sheet of flame which swept over him. Both were covered with plaster which showered from the walls and ceiling.

INTERIOR WRECKED

The building is a three-story brick facing Beaver avenue, with a one-story frame addition in the rear, which runs back to Gironde way. This section is divided into small rooms used as demonstration rooms for electric washing machines, radios, victrolas and other articles.

The interior of this section was wrecked, the roof torn off and the front window of the main store blown into Beaver avenue.

HEARD IN WIDE AREA

Phillips said that he and his assistants had reported to the gas company several times during the last three weeks that gas was escaping in the place. Saturday, he said, an inspector went to the store and, after an investigation, reported that he could find no trace of a leak.

The report of the explosion was heard for several blocks.

2 FLIERS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

18-Year-Old Pilot, Student Die in Flying Club Ship After 300-Foot Plunge

A pilot was killed instantly and his passenger fatally injured when one of the Curtiss Junior pusher type planes from Bettis Field crashed on the Cortak farm in Snowden Township late yesterday. Jacob Zayc, 18, of 1013 Talbot avenue, Braddock, the pilot, was killed instantly, and Joseph Petrask, of 2344 McCook street, died three hours later in St. Joseph Hospital.

The plane was owned by Flying Club No. 3, from Bettis Field.

Suddenly the plane darted upward and, at about 300 feet altitude it turned and dived to the ground. John Henrich, of Epton, and John L. Fower, of Cincinnati, removed the men from the wreckage.

Japanese Slight To Lindy Evens Pangborn Score

-By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER-

Notice that the Japanese invitation read "Meet Mrs. Lindbergh, daughter of Senator Morrow, and her husband."

Her husband is Lindy. But the Japanese are so polite they judge distinguished visitors by our cigaret ads.

Lindy hung up a new towing record last week on a 60-foot cable. He ate a sandwich before the rope broke.

Haven't heard anythings about Pangborn and Herndon since Tokio fined them a $1,000 for taking a picture without Clark Gable in it. They fine you in Hollywood for the same thing.

The boys started out as goodwill ambassadors but must have jettisoned their load.

You are not allowed to take snaps of Japanese ambuscades. Over there the fortifications are as mysterious as the one Gen. Smedley Butler captured in Haiti. Or was it Philadelphia?

All our other fliers are home and and doing. The Army bombers had a perfect test sinking a boat 60 miles off the coast.

GOVERNORS OF 3 STATES SCAN PROPOSAL

Fagan Opposes Militia's Use, Murray Leans to U. S. Rather Than State Control

Governors of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, leading coal operators, miners' union officials and legal authorities today are studying the suggestion of J. T. M. Stoneroad, that the police powers of those states be invoked to control overproduction of coal, just as overproduction of oil was curbed in Oklahoma and Texas.

Mr. Stoneroad, who is president of the Carnegie Coal Company, suggested to the Sun-Telegraph on Saturday, that Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, take the initiative and call the Governors of Ohio and West Virginia in conference to discuss the subject. The Governor is said to be taking the suggestion under advisement.

In Oklahoma and Texas the National Guard was called out to enforce the orders of the Governors of those states, with beneficial results.

While a number of the leading operators of the Pittsburgh district are out of the city, favorable expressions were given Mr. Stoneroad's suggestions by some coal leaders here.

OPERATORS INTERESTED

J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, who has for years been a friend of Stoneroad's, was visiting his parents in Ohio today. When informed of Stoneroad's plan by telephone said:

"I have not read his statement and would not like to give an expression of opinion at this time."

Mr. Morrow will be in Pittsburgh tomorrow, when there may be a discussion between the two coal men of Stoneroad's suggestion.

George H. Theiss, president of the Duquesne Coal and Coke Company, said:

"The chaos in the coal industry has reached such a point that any action to put an end to the present folly of unlimited price and wage cutting would be desirable. Since any co-operation among the operators seems unobtainable, some action on the part of the government, either state or federal, seems to be the only solution.

"Any action that would increase the price of coal to such a point that a living wage can be paid to the coal miners, and operators again made solvent, would be the first ray of hope visible in this industry for years. The oil industry has possibly shown the coal industry the only way out."

FAGAN'S VIEWS

P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5 of the United Mine Workers, said:

"Anything that will cut down production within reasonable limits and stabilize prices will be valuable. Overproduction is one of the most serious problems in the coal fields. I believe it can be handled by agreement, however, rather than calling out the National Guard."

Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, said:

"The mine workers' organization is interested in any solution that might be of constructive value to the mining industry. We believe the best method of dealing with the bituminous coal problem lies in convening a national conference looking toward federal regulation. This would seek a greater spread of employment, better wages and improved living conditions."

OIL SHUTDOWN BOOMS PRICE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Crude oil prices have risen again to $1 a barrel in two states of the Mid-Continent area as the result of a gubernatorial campaign which included the establishment of martial law.

The Phillips Petroleum Company, a major purchaser, announced the posting of top prices of $1 in Oklahoma and Kansas and 72 cents in Gray County, Tex., effective at 7 a. m. yesterday.

The action came 19 days after Gov. W. H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, expressing concern over the plight of small producers, called out Oklahoma National Guardsmen to enforce a shutdown order, in which he later was joined by Gov. Ross S. Sterling, of Texas. Prices at that time ranged as low as 10 cents a barrel.

Gov. Harry H. Woodring, of Kansas, who declared himself in "complete accord" with the program, reported that a major purchasing company, which he declined to identify, had offered to raise its price to $1 a barrel in Kansas.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Gov. W. H. Murray, of Oklahoma, said here today that the shutdown order against oil companies in his state would not be withdrawn until all major companies came to a general agreement to purchase their crude oil at $1 a barrel.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 24.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Best news in a whole bale of Sunday papers was from a Senator. (wouldn't think it, would you?) Senator Jim Couzens offered a million to Detroit's relief fund. A few examples like that early, before the cold sets in, will have great effect. Young Insull in Chicago is doing some fine work. That's the best thing about Mr. Hoover's big committee. It's what they will give themselves and get their friends to give that will make them valuable. Our rich are mighty liberal when the real showdown comes. So thank you, Jim, we will cable your friend Andy about this.

Yours, WILL.

THAT'S PART OF THE BARGAIN

The other day we heard a wise shoemaker say he couldn't afford charge accounts. Neither can we. In spite of the fact that we do the largest retail grocery business in the world, we can't afford to wait for our money.

That's our conviction, and we've got to stick to it if we're going to run our affairs economically and efficiently and supply our enormous public with good food at low prices.

A small profit on each item sold—that's all we'll ask if you keep your part of the bargain and pay for everything you buy when you buy it. As far as that goes, it's best for both of us. It helps to keep us both out of debt, which is good for your digestion and peace of mind, and good for our business.

Church Pickpocket Steals $100 Watch From Builder

Poland Encourages Franco-Soviet Peace

WARSAW, Poland, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Gazeta Polska, the semi-official newspaper, asserted editorially today that Poland looks with favor upon conversations between France and Soviet Russia in connection with a pact of non-aggression between those nations.

THEATERS OPEN DESPITE STRIKE

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Protected by a court injunction, 104 neighborhood moving picture theaters were opened last night in defiance to demands of the union that each employ two instead of one film operator.

On the contention that the city ordinance requiring the licensing of motion picture operators in Chicago was unconstitutional, Judge Ross C. Hall issued the injunction to the Allied Theater Owners' Association of Illinois. This was served on city officials shortly before the theaters were scheduled to open. No cases of violence followed, police reported.

In nearly all of the projection booths were operators who came from New York City. All of them claim to be members of unions in the eastern city. None is affiliated with the Chicago local.

Sports Editor

Dempsey Through.
Can't Come Back.
Legs Are Gone.

And Youth Has Sped.

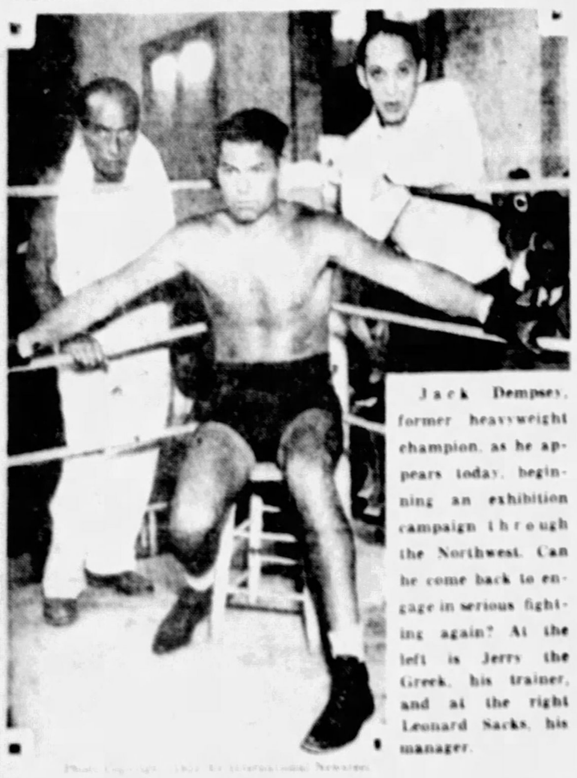
Rise of Yarosz.

CHARLEY BAXTER, POTENTIAL CHAMPION



Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, as he appears today, beginning an exhibition campaign through the Northwest. Can he come back to engage in serious fighting again? At the left is Jerry the Greek, his trainer, and at the right Leonard Sacks, his manager.

JACK DEMPSEY tonight begins another of his periodical "comeback" campaigns with the first of a series of exhibitions throughout the Northwest, and again he has the fans talking and is commanding reams of newsprint space.

It is a new line for Dempsey. Previously he made a cleanup refereeing bouts throughout the country for fancy fees. He was quite an added attraction and drew large crowds wherever he appeared. During the course of this tour he delivered the belated decision that he was through as a fighter, saying he fully realized he would be foolish to attempt to go on as an active participant in the ring.

NOW, IN CONNECTION with his new tour, he talks of fighting himself back into shape for a possible bout with Max Schmeling, the present champion, sometimes called the German Dempsey, next summer.

Bologny! Also tripe!!

DEMPSEY, great fighter that he was, never will be able to come back far enough to box Schmeling. Only by being shielded from ambitious youngsters and being fed a flock of stumblebums can he even hope to make any sort of a showing in his exhibitions at his advanced age. There is as much chance of his regaining the heights as there is of Benny Leonard coming back to win any titles.

Those things don't happen in the ring.

But let's to tell that to some of the rabid fight fans. With them, Dempsey still is the old Manassa Mauler. They like to kid themselves into believing that Jack still is the real heavyweight champion of the world, and that both of his defeats by Gene Tunney were flukes. They want to be fooled, and Dempsey and his manager, Leonard Sarks, are going to see that they are fooled, at a fat price.

DEMPSEY REALLY BEGAN his "comeback" campaign a few nights ago in Reno, Nev., where he is one of the big men of the wide open town. He was billed for two bouts of two rounds each with one Jack Beasley, of California, and Tony Fuente. Beasley is a preet-weaver and Fuente is a washed-up third-rater. Dempsey won by a knockout over Beasley in the second round and it was announced then that Fuente had a couple of broken ribs and could not go on, so the exhibition was concluded with another round against Beasley. On the heels of this exhibition, the word was flashed about the country that Dempsey looked for all the world like his old self, "as good as the day he knocked out Jess Willard at Toledo to win the championship."

Bologny, we repeat. And, no matter how thin you slice it, it's still bologny.

DEMPSEY WAS ALL but through when he boxed Luis Firpo at the Polo Grounds, back in 1923, and barely escaped with his title. Then, after a three-year layoff, he was a setup for Tunney at Philadelphia. The following year he was permitted to foul his way into a "knockout" victory over Jack Sharkey in New York to pave the way for a return battle with Tunney in Chicago in which he was outclassed except for one flurry in the seventh round during which he floored Tunney, only to continue to take a shellacking over the remainder of the route.

Charley Jones

THAT SECOND TUNNEY fight, four years ago, was the swan song of Dempsey in the ring. It is inconceivable that he can come back to a semblance of his former self at this late stage. His legs were gone a half-dozen years ago, and in his heyday they were one of his most valuable assets.

In connection with Dempsey's latest "comeback" ballyhoo, Harry Carr, a veteran boxing writer, of California, presents some solid arguments against the chances of veterans returning to their former glory in the ring. In addition to the matter of faltering legs, he cites as stumbling blocks in Dempsey's path loss of the old fire, or will to win, diminishing eyesight and loss of speed. The old punch may remain, but, in order to score, it must be co-ordinated with the aforementioned attributes of youth that have ravaged the former kingpin of them all. Carr says with undeniable logic.

CONTINUING, CARR CITES other ill-fated comeback attempts or last stands. That of Jim Jeffries against Jack Johnson at Reno after a layoff of six years is outstanding. Then there was the case of Johnny Coulon, who knew he was whipped before he entered the ring against Kid Williams and made a pitiable showing. Abe Attel lacked the vital spark when he dropped his crown to Johnny Kilbane, and the latter came upon a similar sad day when he took the champion's end and folded up before Eugene Criqui. Ad Wolgast was all prepared to lose on a foul to avoid a knockout by Willie Ritchie.

NO, DEMPSEY HAS been kissed out of the championship picture much as we all regret to admit the truth of his position. He remains an idol of the fans, but actually he is just a memory as a fighting man. And deep down in his heart he knows it. May he make a lot of money and enjoy the plaudits of the throngs for the remainder of his days and be not so rash as to step into the ring for a serious bout with an ambitious, hard-hitting youngster.

By reason of one of the snappiest double plays in local boxing history, Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, will be the opponent of Vidal Gregorio, the Spaniard, in the 10-round main bout at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, tonight.

Jackie Rodgers, another dusky local fist-thrower, was the original foe of Gregorio. When he came up with a cold and an infected throat and a lame arm, on Friday, Willie Davies, of Charleroi, was signed to take his place. Yesterday Davies developed the same symptoms as Rodgers, with the exception of the bum whip, and Thomas was thrown into the breach.

Thus the double play, Rodgers to Davies to Thomas.

JIMMY IN LIMELIGHT

Thomas is just fresh from a technical knockout victory over Baby Face Mathison in Erie last Friday night, when the referee had to stop the bout at the end of the fourth round to save Mathison a highly touted fistician from Buffalo, from further punishment. One of Thomas' rights had broken Mathison's nose and opened cuts from which he bled profusely, and a full-fledged knockout was just around the corner. It was one of the best wins of young Jimmy's career and will net him a return shot in Erie, as well as bouts in Buffalo and in Montreal and Toronto, where Mathison is well regarded. Jimmy also is due to box in the main bout at New Castle next Monday night.

Both Rodgers and Davies contracted their illnesses in Davies' training camp in the mountains

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: WHERE SHIPS CROSS MOUNTAINS—The Oberlaendische (highland) Canal in East Prussia is noted for its extreme beauty, technicality and uniqueness, even for a land with as many waterways as Germany. But it is best characterized by the fact that its ships actually ride over mountains. A chain of East Prussian lakes are joined by a 125-mile canal, built in sections and divided by a series of hills. Transportation of the boats over the hills is accomplished by means of heavy railroad trucks on wide guage tracks, drawn by huge cables. HARRY C.

MORSE CAUGHT A LARGE TROUT ON HIS NOSE—Morse, now owner and manager of a Penn Yan, (N. Y.) theater, was 7 years old on August 27, 1873. His mother, to celebrate the anniversary, took him for a rowboat ride on Lake Keuka—which ride almost cost young Morse his nose. Leaning far over the side of the rowboat he suddenly jumped back with a scream, attracting his mother's attention to his badly lacerated nose and the flounderring trout simultaneously. The trout, which weighed eight pounds, had jumped out of the water, bitten the child's nose and held on to it with such tenacity that it was pulled into the boat.

Hurricanes Wallop Argentine Poloists

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Minus the services of their 10-goal ace, Lewis Lacey, the Argentine polo team from the Hurlingham Club, of Buenos Aires, was no match whatever yesterday for the Hurricanes, open champions of the United States.

With Stephen (Laddie) Sanford, at No. 1, playing one of the most spectacular games of his career in front of the sharp-shooting high-goal stars, Winston Guest and Capt. Roark, the Hurricanes put the South Americans to rout. The final score was 18 to 4. The open champions outscored their opponents in every period.

JENNINGS WINS PARK TITLE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent

DETROIT, Aug. 24.—George Jennings, Jr., southpaw streak, of Hamilton Park, Chicago, still reigns over all municipal racquet stars of the country. The agile Illinoisan yesterday fought the limit with his ancient foeman, Dooley Mitchell, Georgetown ace, from Washington, to land his fourth consecutive National Public Parks men's singles title. The count read 6-4, 5-7, 6-1, 2-6, 11-9.

A gallery of upwards of 2,500 spectators thrilled to the surge of the classic man-to-man combat, and remained to cheer as Jennings and his Windy City partner, Gordon Braudt, scrimmaged through another lengthy encounter to capture the doubles championship from Mitchell and his Capital team-mate, Bud Markey, of Notre Dame, 6-2, 6-4, 13-11, for Jennings' fifth straight annexation of dual honors.

Mitchell was runner-up to Jennings in the 1930 singles, while Markey and Edgar Yeomans, also of Washington, were defeated by the Chicago slasher and Jack de Lara, of Los Angeles, for two-man laurels a year ago.

The singles finale was a heart-throb, working to sensational climax in the protracted fifth set. On service and from the base line, Mitchell proved the flashier performer, but at the barrier and in general steadiness, Jennings held a margin that ultimately meant victory.

The network of Jennings and Braudt swayed the issue in the doubles. Markey was playing back on service, a fact that opened the way to the barrier for the Chicagoans. The Washington team tossed away several opportunities by dropping games in which they enjoyed seemingly decisive leads.

BUCS TO PLAY ROBINS TWICE TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The Pirates rested today on top of their two bitter defeats of yesterday.

Steady rains of this morning cause the Brooklyn management to cancel the third game of the Pirate-Robin series, scheduled for this afternoon.

Wednesday now is an open date in the Pittsburgh and Brooklyn schedules. The game originally carded for the date was moved back to September, the clubs scheduling exhibition games for Wednesday.

In the event of rain tomorrow, a switch in plans might be made, although it still would be possible to play off the games without cancelling the exhibition contests.

The Pirates were just about ready to set sail for the Flatbush today when the news reached them regarding today's postponement.

LOSE BOTH FRAYS

In losing two games by the same score, 5 to 4, to the Robins yesterday, the Pirates deviated from their usual method of failing to get hits in a clinch. On this occasion they ran off some baseball that would hardly have been tolerated in a horse-and-buggy league. If money were not so tight it is possible that several of the players today might be fined for their actions in the dual struggle. And, then, just to be different than the stupid athletes, Lloyd Waner became confused with his sun glasses, his mixup costing the Pirates the first fight just after they had taken the lead.

You know, the modern game has progressed to such a point in this machine age, that the up-to-date outfielder must have mechanical spectacles with which to pluck the balls out of the sun. Operated by a spring which also is attached to the visor of the cap, the glasses cost as high as $20.

Two were out in the seventh inning of the first game and Gilbert was on second when Slade hit a long fly to center. Brother Lloyd started after the ball but the little star was so busy trying to snap the spring on his glasses he lost the ball completely and it went to deep center as the tying and winning runs streaked for the plate. Slade was credited with a three-bagger and he scored on a continuous play.

PAUL PULLS BONER

Climaxing the bad plays of the afternoon was one of P. Waner in the ninth inning of the nightcap. With the winning run on second and none out, Brother Paul elected to catch a long foul, which then had the same punch as a sacrifice for the enemy, the winning tally advancing to third after the mistaken catch. French followed with a wild pitch and everybody went home happy except the Pirates.

Young Tennis Star May Join Pros

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—The Milwaukee Sentinel said last night that Frank Parker, Milwaukee's 15-year-old national boy's tennis champion, may forsake amateur ranks and join William T. Tilden's group of touring professionals.

DETROIT, Aug. 24.—I spoke to Griff today about my next year's contract. Griff said, "You will have to take a cut as the club's comedian."

I said, "How come?"

I said, "What else?"

Griff said, "Too many of your gags have been left on base and never got home. Your laughing average is down to 120."

I said, "Is anything else wrong?"

Griff said, "As for close harmony, you are a sheep dip, bass and a very harsh irritant which I would sell to some other company if I could get the waiver price."

Assisted by a hole in 1 on the ninth green, Mrs. George Tyson, of Kansas City qualified for the right to defend her championship by shooting an 81, two shots over par. Her card:

Homestead Grays vs. Franklin All Stars at Franklin.

By TOM BIRKS

Reliance will have a tough time holding its share of the leadership in the C. & I. League with the Rieck outfit this evening when Miller and his club travel to delightful Camp Horne to meet the Burchfield aggregation. Burchfield has been priming the Campers for this meeting and Sam Craig feels that Bobby Owston is scheduled to turn in a victory.

The Reliance nine has been idle often recently owing to the bad weather and this rest has been helpful to the pitching staff composed of Capt. Dutch Spencer, Bill Gormley, Ski Twyman and Seibel.

Spencer probably will twirl this evening with Gormley working the important Rieck game tomorrow.

Swissvale will try and help its standing in the West Penn loop this evening when Mike Kudrau and his St. Joachim nine land at Swissvale. The Community club is very much in the race, and the Saints are playing great baseball.

Two games will be flashed in the City League. The North Side Buicks will clash with Homewood and the league-leading Book outfit clashes with the J. L. Thomas at Olympia Park.

Snee competing with the East End Cardinals for the leadership of the Steel City League will tackle the O'Malley nine at Marshall Field.

The Homestead Grays start off their week's play at Franklin this evening. Tomorrow they'll hook up with the Beaver County League All-Stars at Beaver, and Wednesday they'll meet an all-star nine at Washington. Pa. Honus Wagner will play for the All-Stars.

MRS. MOODY REGAINS TITLE

CHAMPION AGAIN

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, still the impassive, perfect tennis player, came back yesterday to claim her rightful place atop the women's tennis world by defeating Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, of England, in straight sets in the finals of the forty-fourth national women's tournament at Forest Hills.

The scores of 6-4, 6-1 indicate the ease and dispatch with which Queen Helen turned back the last of 63 players who questioned her right to the throne she relinquished a year ago. It took her 24 minutes to subdue her slighter opponent in the opening set, but she ran through the second in 10 minutes with the loss of only 14 points.

Mrs. Whittingstall, who on two preceding days had blasted aside Helen Jacobs, America's second greatest player, and Betty Nuthall, England's No. 1 star and defending champion, could not cope with the steady strokins of Mrs. Moody.

The victory gave Mrs. Moody her seventh national title since she first came East, her hair in a pigtail, at the start of the last decade. She won her first championship in 1923, repeated in '24 and '25 and then, after a year's absence, swept them all aside in '27, '28 and '29. She did not compete last year, the title going to Betty Nuthall when she defeated Mrs. Lawrence Harper, of America, in the finals.

Mrs. Moody is the national women's tennis champion for the seventh year, having regained the title in the final round of the annual tournament at Forest Hills, L. I., yesterday. She did not defend the championship last year.

For the first time in years, the foreign element in this classic will be limited to a single team, Frederick J. Perry and G. Patrick Hughes, British Davis Cup players.

HURLER MISSES NO-HIT WIN

The Homestead Grays and the Crawford Stars featured yesterday's sandlot baseball program, the Grays winning a double-header at Canton, missing a no-hit, no-run game by a single batter in the first fray and the Crawfords walloped a City League entry, the J. L. Thomas nine, 9-0.

In the first game of the dual engagement at Canton, Roy Williams, hurling for the Grays, had two men out in the ninth and had not given up a hit. The third batter, Lau, drove the ball at the Gray hurler, who failed to field it and it went for a single. The Grays won, 8-0, and then came back to take the second game, in seven innings, 8-2.

Linden Grove defeated Pittsburgh Monarchs, 18-8; N. S. Elks downed the Holland club, 5-1. Snee won over the Speed nine, 8-1, and Gonzales nosed out the Clovers, 7-5.

Santa Paula Four Scores Easy Victory

WOODMERE, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(AP.)—The Santa Paula polo team from Argentina extended its brilliant series of triumphs in the East yesterday by trouncing a 23-goal side that carried the name of Whippany River, 13 to 8.

LEFTY GROVE IS STOPPED BY BROWNS

Associated Press.

The St. Louis Browns, who have proved annoying oppohents for Philadelphia's Athletics all season, have deprived Lefty Grove, the A's southpaw ace, of a chance to set a new American League record.

Grove won 16 successive games, tieing the mark set in 1912 by Smoky Joe Wood and Walter Johnson, before he ran into the Browns and Dick Coffman yesterday in the first game of a double-header. He pitched another good game, giving only seven hits and one run, the result of a misjudged ball which went for a double in the third inning, but Coffman was a little better. The St. Louis hurler accomplished a feat no other American League pitcher has done this season when he held the champions to three hits and gave them their first shutout of the year.

THOMAS SUBBED FOR DAVIES

COMMISSION WAIVES RULE

In order to enable Thomas to appear in the Gregorio bout, the Bowl had to obtain special permission from the Boxing Commission, which has waived the five-day rule between main bouts in the emergency. Incidentally, Thomas has just been ranked among the leading bantamweights of the world by the National Boxing Association in its latest quarterly ratings. Champion Al Brown is rated at No. 1, with Pete Sanstol, against whom he defends the title at Montreal this week; Newsboy Brown, Gregorio, Archie Bell, Art Giroux, Davies, Eugene Huat, Thomas, Harry Fierro and Spider Pladner following him, in that order.

Gregorio arrived in town yesterday fit as a fiddle and not caring whom he was to engage in battle. He is a well-seasoned campaigner and they all look alike to him. He has boxed a 15-round bout with Al Brown, the Negro holder of the world title, and has been in there with Kid Chocolate, Bushy Graham, Joe Scalfaro, Sammy Tisch, Milton Cohen, Benny Tell, Matty White, Johnny Erickson and other good ones.

Marty Gornick, of Whitaker, boxes Ray Collins, of Erie, and Eddie Brannon, Negro lightweight, of the Hill, meets Jimmy Kelly, of Dayton, O., who did a lot of knockout slugging around here a year or so ago, in another eight-rounder, a return bout, Brannon having won the first one. Johnny Montebano, of Braddock, and Jimmy Reilly, of McKeesport, box the six-round opener, set for 8:45 o'clock.

BAXTER BEGINS TRAINING

Keck's Sport Comment

the bout was declared a draw and Loughran was suspended when he protested, but the next day the referee rechecked his scoring and the decision was reversed in Tommy's favor . . . The Washington Athletic Club, of Seattle, has a few more Helene Madisons in the making, according to Ray Daughters, the coach, who developed the great record-making mermaid . . . He's prepping them for the Olympic Games in Los Angeles next year . . . Two of his best prospects are Olive McKean, 15-year-old high school free-style swimmer, and Dawn (Babe) Gibson, 17, a backstroke speedster . . . Talk about your hospital lists in baseball and football, how about our local boxing colony's ailing roster? . . . It includes Battling Gizzy, laid up with illness for several months; Mose Butch and Ted Yarosz, broken hands; Nordi Smith, broken arm; Billy Holt, broken jaw, and Jackie Rodgers, out with a cold and a lame arm . . . Speaking of Yarosz, he's made some rapid strides within the past year . . . Last summer he substituted on short notice for Tom Maloo to gain the first of his four wins over Tiger Joe Randall at Hickey Park, and dragged down 15 per cent for his end . . . When he boxed Randall in the same ring several nights ago, his purse was 35 per cent of the gate receipts, his reward for 47 consecutive victories as a pro, including Buck McTiernan and Bucky Lawless among his victims.

THERE'S AN INTERESTING angle to the Charley Baxter-Frankie Bojarski battle at Hickey Park, Millvale, Thursday night . . . Both have been developed by local men in other towns and will be meeting in Pittsburgh . . . Bojarski is a protege of Jack Barry, former local welterweight boxer, coming up through the latter's club in Erie, while Charley Jones, formerly of McKeesport, now of the North Side, picked up Baxter in a gym in Columbus, O., and has brought him along in fine style . . . The fans are quite familiar with the record of Bojarski, who is something of a Ted Yarosz in that he has not been defeated in 42 starts, but little is known here of the classy Baxter, so a few lines about the latter will not be amiss . . . Charley was a star high school football and basketball player in Columbus when he began to take an interest in boxing and hung around the gymnasium where Midget Mike O'Dowd, managed by Jones, prepared for his fights . . . He is only 19 years old now and was married at 17 to the daughter of Grant (Kid) Clark, a former middleweight boxer of Columbus, who met Harry Greb, George Chip, Jack Dillon and others in his time and now resides in McKees Rocks . . . Charley is the father of a nine-months-old son.

IN 66 BOUTS, young Baxter has lost only two, one to Jose Estrada, the sensational Mexican lightweight, in Greenwood, Miss., and the other on a foul in Wheeling . . . He has scored 36 knockouts and won 28 bouts by the decision route in his three years of campaigning. Because of his tender years, Jones would not let him box more than six rounds until recently, but Baxter was such a good card in several cities that he appeared in six-round feature bouts topping 10-round preliminaries . . . He has boxed in Cincinnati, Dayton, O., Louisville, Columbus, Indianapolis and Memphis, in addition to Wheeling and Greenwood, and scored 14 consecutive knockouts in Cincinnati, where, two years ago, he was offered a bout with Freddie Miller, the southpaw star . . . Among the better known men Charley has boxed, aside from Estrada, are Lou Vine, Red Holloway, Joe Lynn and Jackie Dugan . . . When he meets the hard-hitting Bojarski he will be facing a southpaw for the first time, but his manager has no fear of the outcome . . . Jones believes Baxter, a personable young fellow, a swell boxer and a good righthand puncher, is destined to become a champion, and he jumped at the chance to break into his old stamping ground when the match with Bojarski was offered him for his protege.

YOUR OLD FAVORITE, James J. Long, will be back from his vacation and filling this space again beginning tomorrow. And the Pirates return Thursday . . . Meanwhile, yours truly goes away for his annual two weeks' siesta before the world series and another big football season.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—A renewed selling wave swept a number of railroad issues to new low levels today in the bond market. Foreign obligations were generally lower, following the crisis in British politics, and public utility, and industrial loans declined narrowly and irregularly.

NEW YORK, April 10.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows. (Not omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Market Loses Ground — Local Market Heavy

BRITISH CRISIS UNSETTLES MARKET

Rails Sag to New Lows As Steel, Other Issues Decline Point or More

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—The budget crisis in England provided a somewhat unsettled background for the start of the new week in the financial markets.

Stocks continued the decline of last week, quietly and without acceleration. The foreign division of the bond market was somewhat depressed. Foreign Exchanges were quiet and orderly. Rails were again the conspicious soft spot in the share market, both New York Central and Pennsylvania sagging more than a point to new lows for the decade.

American Telephone broke 3 points, then recovered partially. Miscellaneous issues off a point or two included United States Steel, American Can, Woolworth, Safeway, North American, American Tobacco B, Standard Oil of California, Kreuger and Toll, and Eastman.

The only element of surprise in the British situation was the news that the $250,000,000 Franco-American credit to the Bank of England, extended three weeks ago, had been virtually exhausted in supporting Sterling Exchange. This was in substance confirmed in Wall street international banking circles, although last week it had been generally understood in the financial community that only a minor fraction of the American portion of the loan had been used.

Corporate of business news over the weekend failed to provide important clues. Unofficial third quarter earnings estimates are beginning to appear in Wall Street, and are of a character to suggest further important dividend reductions. Further wage reductions are being widely forecast in financial quarters.

The $1-a-barrel crude oil price objective of Gov. Murray in Oklahoma has apparently been achieved, much sooner than generally expected, with the posting of such a price by at least one company. Oil securities, however, were quiet and little changed.

WHEAT PRICES REACTIONARY

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Wheat showed a moderate response to firmness in Liverpool at the start today, but weakened immediately afterwards because of pronounced weakness of corn and oats. All deliveries of corn and oats sold at new low prices for the season with liquidation and stop loss selling affecting the break. Wheat opened 1/8 to 3/4 cent higher and reacted later. Corn started 1/8 to 1/2 off and continued downgrade.

Corn dipped sharply at the start, all deliveries going below any prices quoted this season. Later the market rallied as the pressure was relieved by some buying, and prices surged upward to slightly above the opening figures on deferred deliveries. September corn was down to 39 1/8 cents a bushel a few minutes after trading started. All deliveries of oats sagged with corn to new lows for the season, but rallied on covering by shorts.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Cotton opened firm today, 16 to 29 points higher in response to higher Liverpool cables and active covering, which may have been precipitated by the rain of acreage reduction or other relief measures in the South.

Wall street and local interests were credited with buying in considerable volume at the opening and prices sold up to 7.79c for December and 7.81c for March on the early demand, or about 25 to 29 points net higher on the active positions.

Liverpool cables said the market here had been influenced by continental buying and covering on the publication of the report of the Department of Agriculture and private crop inquiry for cotton crush.

The volume of business tapered off later in the morning and prices reacted 8 to 9 points from the best, under scattering of profit taking by some recent buyers.

The offerings were comparatively light, however, and the market was steady late in the morning with the active months ruling about 10 to 23 points net higher at 7.77c for December and 7.80c for March.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP.)—Raw sugar was easier early today and declined 1-32 of a cent to the basis of 3.52c for spot duty paid. Sales confirmed included 5,000 bags for prompt delivery and 5,000 bags for prompt shipment from Cuba at 3.52c to refiners and 5,000 bags for prompt shipment to an outport refiner at 3.42c.

Futures opened 1 to 3 points lower and later showed net losses of 2 to 4 points under liquidation in advance of Beet Sugar Association estimates. The estimate of the trade committee is the first London cable to arrive after the close of the early selling, but at the extreme decline there was increased covering and a partial rally followed, with the list at midday 2 to 3 points net lower.

Refined was unchanged at 4.75c for fine granulated, with second hand available at from 5 to 10 points less.

Otis Gets $1,000,000 Elevator Order

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

New York Curb Market — Latest Financial News

Forbes

Wall Street Is Still in Jumpy Mood.

By B. C. FORBES

FINANCIAL sentiment is still nervous jumpy.

This is reflected by the erratic fluctuations from day to day in stocks, bonds, the grain market, cotton, and other commodities.

B. C. Forbes

Although stocks declined six points last week, they still average nearly ten points higher than on June 2. Bonds, however, are at approximately the year's minimum, a fact which has had a depressing influence in conservative investment circles.

THIS PREVAILING bearishness is not without a grain of consolation. Always in the past sentiment has become unreasonably pessimistic just before the turn set in. History may shortly repeat itself.

ADMITTEDLY there was no dearth of unsettling happenings last week. Britain's economic condition excited widespread alarm. Little thought was given to the historic fact that John Bull has been in worse straits before and has emerged successfully. Notwithstanding the distinct progress made towards patching up Germany's monetary difficulties, the response here was extremely lukewarm. Newspapers feature Cuba's revolution. China's unprecedently catastrophic floods, unemployment news, banking troubles, falling prices, and other disturbing developments.

YET, THERE WERE events of a more encouraging character. The Department of Labor's trustworthy figures revealed that the general price level held its own during July, a most unusual achievement. The Bank of England has strengthened its position, German clouds were at least partly lifted. Week-end dispatches reported Cuba's revolt as nearing an end.

Crude oil prices were marked up in important Mid-Continent fields, and Texas reported better price prospects as a result of the drastic curtailment compelled by military force. Highly important oil merger developments were disclosed as being under way. The Farm Board managed to barter 25,000,000 bushels of its embarassingly heavy surplus of wheat in exchange for Brazilian coffee, and China apparently is booked for 15,000,000 bushels from the board's overflowing warehouses.

Retail trade news was not discouraging. In fact, when due allowance is made for the sharp fall in prices, department stores are shown to be doing fairly well compared with a year ago. Cheerful tidings came from the cotton spinning, clothing and shoe industries.

BROKERS' LOANS increased $14,000,000, suggesting a little more interest in stock buying. It was noticeable that there was no overwhelming volume of liquidation when stocks swung downwards, indicating that liquidation around current levels has pretty much run its course.

The week's bank failures were really of minor moment. But, Wall Street at the moment has its mind only on discouraging, not encouraging possibilities.

THERE WAS ONE highly gratifying incident last week. The selection by President Hoover of Walter S. Gifford as the unhampered director of unemployment relief measures. This phenomenally able business executive has never yet fallen down on any task assigned him, no matter how complicated. In the highest circles he is counted upon to spur sufficient effective action throughout the country before December 1 to modify, if not offset, demands for huge scale federal largesse. Financial and business leaders are now keenly alive to the political dangers threatened; therefore the Gifford campaign for local action is likely to meet wholehearted response, at least in the larger centers.

NOTWITHSTANDING the too-prevalent pessimism, America is not at all likely to suffer all the direful things that nervous, spineless individuals are conjuring up.

Call for Lumber Exceeds Output

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Orders for lumber received at mills during the week ended August 15 were approximately 2 per cent in excess of production, telegraphic reports from 841 leading hardwood and softwood mills to the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association indicate. Combined production was 201,780,000 feet. Shipments of the reporting mills were 11 per cent above production. A week earlier 848 mills reported orders 1 per cent below and shipments 3 per cent above production of 205,566,000 feet.

Pennsylvania Oil Situation Under Control

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

MODIFICATION OF THE PRORATION agreement by the Pennsylvania Grade Oil Conservation Board following three increases in prices indicates that the efforts of oil men in this district to stabilize their business have been successful.

It is probable that in no other oil field in the country have the producers shown such willingness to co-operate in establishing proration rules and in living up to them. Their fidelity to the Conservation Board's rulings is at last being rewarded through the absorbtion of excessive stocks and an improved market situation.

During the past month the prices of Pennsylvania crude have increased 40 cents a barrel. The last advance of five cents established the top grade at $1.75 a barrel. This is still far under the peak of over $4 a barrel of two years ago but it indicates that the industry is well in hand.

Output Increased 10 Per Cent

AFTER BEING HELD to a production of 50 per cent of capacity for several months, the Bradford field will be allowed to produce at 60 per cent of its April, 1930, output. Other Pennsylvania fields will be allowed a flow of 80 per cent in place of their former rate of 70 per cent.

The new level of proration recognizes the fact that stocks of Pennsylvania oil have been sufficiently reduced. It also reflects an improved market for refined products made from Pennsylvania crude.

Export buyers have been taking increased quantities of Pennsylvania grade lubricants. Extensive advertising campaigns have also been a factor in increasing the markets for these products.

South Penn Prospects Better

THE IMPROVED CONDITIONS in Pennsylvania oil fields will materially help companies engaged in producing and refining in this district. South Penn Oil Company will be restored to a profitable basis for the second half of 1931.

This company reported a net loss of $9,058 in the first half after deducting all charges with the exception of inventory losses on oil. These losses amounted to $1,124,531. The change in the price trend will replace inventory losses with profits in the second half. Increased production and a wider margin of profit will expand actual operating profits.

South Penn earned $1,378,073 or $1.15 a share in the half year of 1930 as compared with $5,139,292 or $4.25 a share in 1929.

Oil Prices Higher

IN OTHER PARTS OF THE COUNTRY prices are beginning to advance as refiners find themselves pinched for supplies of crude oil due to the suspension of operations in Oklahoma and East Texas. A few small refiners are reported to have offered $1 a barrel for crude oil. The leading companies have offered 70 cents a barrel. The prospects for restoring $1 crude oil before the bars are let down on production in Texas seem quite good at the present time.

Fanchon Is Comfortable in Her New Home

CHAPTER X.

There was a little silence. Fanchon felt her heart lift on a sudden surge of hope. She was not Evelyn Howard. She was not of this woman's blood. But Evelyn was dead. You robbed the dead of nothing. Fanchon was alive. If she could be to this woman what Evelyn would have been; if, with her own longing for affection, for home and for safety, she could even be more than Evelyn would have been, would that not be counted, perhaps, in her favor? Evelyn, she knew, from the little she had seen of her, was less concerned with her emotional relationship to her aunt than what that aunt held out to her in the way of promises of ease, luxury, money—a chance perhaps to marry well. With those things Fanchon had very little concern. What she wanted and what she was prepared to give in return was something very different, something into which money and material things did not and could not enter.

She spoke, stumbling a little over the unaccustomed form of address.

"I—I want to make you as happy, Aunt Jennie," she said in her low, charmingly husky voice, "as you have made me already."

A little silence fell between them. And in it Fanchon vowed to dedicate herself to this woman's service, whatever it might be.

Presently—"Here we are," Mrs. Carstairs said blithely. "I'm putting you in one of the guest rooms for your own rooms are to be done over for you this summer."

"Here" was an apartment on upper Fifth avenue: a penthouse apartment overlooking the park and the reservoir. A footman servant opened to them and Mrs. Carstairs said, "My niece, Miss Howard, Jameson."

ENORMOUS APARTMENT

Jameson, an elderly person, seemed genuinely moved. He made Fanchon a curious, stilted little speech of welcome and Fanchon smiled at him, gently. She realized then that all her servants adored Jennie Carstairs. It was easy to see why.

"Jameson," explained Mrs. Carstairs, leading the way in, "has been with me for many years and so is one of the family. I brought him up from the country to look after us for a few days."

The apartment seemed enormous to Fanchon. She caught glimpses of a huge dining room and music room, on one side, living room and library on the other, all opening off a square hall. These rooms, explained Mrs. Carstairs further, all opened upon a terrace and Fanchon could see through the long French windows flowers blooming and small trees, gay chairs and couches and awnings.

"I keep the apartment in livable shape," Mrs. Carstairs went on, "as Collin runs in and out all summer and must have a place to stay."

She hesitated and began again, her clear skin flushing.

"Collin . . ." she went on, "is up North. You may have wondered why he isn't in town to meet you?"

"No," said Fanchon with perfect truth, "I hadn't wondered at all."

"I wrote you," the other woman said, "about his attitude. But I would rather explain more fully later."

She took Fanchon into a lovely room on the second floor. It had a big connecting bath. "It is at the end of the hall from me," Mrs. Carstairs told her. "Your own room, when it is ready, opens on the gallery and next to mine."

A middle-aged woman was waiting in the room. "This is Emma," Mrs. Carstairs told Fanchon, "she will look after you."

GUESSED SIZE

She had done so already. The bed was turned down, the windows open to what cool air there was. A sheer nightgown and a negligee and slippers lay nearby.

"I guessed at the size," Mrs. Carstairs said. "You are taller than I thought, but we will manage to get some little frocks for you before we go down to the Island and with the minimum of discomfort. You wrote me, you know, that you had very little."

Fanchon flushed in shame for Evelyn Howard who could pack her trunk to come East and write her aunt that she "had very little." Had Fanchon been in her place . . . but she was in her place!—she would have gotten along with what she had and said nothing out of sheer stubborn pride. She said now,

"Oh, but I didn't mean—I can manage perfectly well with what I have."

She wondered a little wildly just what clothes the trunk would contain. Evelyn, as she remembered her from shipboard, had rather run to frills and furbelows and clothes of an inexpensive material and lots of them. Fanchon's own tastes were more expensive yet simpler.

TO RETURN SUITCASE

"Never mind that now," Mrs. Carstairs said quickly, "you get undressed and into a hot tub. Then you climb right into bed. I'm having my own doctor come and look you over, after your dinner."

"I'm perfectly all right," Fanchon protested, "please don't bother. Really, Aunt Jennie!"

"I want to be sure," the older woman told her, smiling. "You're to have a light supper on a tray and I will have one with you. Then the doctor. And tomorrow we will talk."

She left the room after a word to the maid. The little straw suitcase had been brought up and was on the canvas luggage stand. The maid moved toward it.

"Don't unpack it," Fanchon told her, "there is nothing in my own in there. It must be returned."

"Very good, Miss Evelyn. May I run your bath?"

"Please," said Fanchon.

There had been plenty of servants on the plantation. Fanchon was perfectly accustomed to service, although she had lacked it for eight months or more now. But it was easy to slip back into the old ways.

Presently she was lying full length in the great marble tub, her bandaged arm a little awkwardly out of the water. There was a warm scent of fragrant bath salts. The bathroom itself was quite beautiful, tiled in green and black and white. Fanchon closed her eyes and dreamed. But it was all a dream.

DELECTABLE SUPPER

Later, rested and refreshed, she was in the big swan bed, with pillows piled in back of her, looking about the pretty room. Emma appeared, with a table that swung out over the bed and a tray. On the tray was supper—invalid's fare . . . a quaint little pottery bowl of soup, the white breast of a chicken, a baked potato and a vegetable, a salad, a cup of custard and coffee. Fanchon, who had been hungrier than she thought, looked at it with delight, and at the silver, the pretty china, the bread and butter sandwiches cut wafer thin.

Mrs. Carstairs came in, in a dark tailored satin lounging robe. Her hair, free of her hat, was lovely, masses of it, pure silver, waved close to her fine head. Emma pulled a big chair close to the bed, arranged a tip-top table beside it and Jameson brought in the second tray.

"Your mother and I used to do this, now and again," Mrs. Carstairs commented, and sighed, heavily.

Synopsis

Leaving Hawaii shortly after her father's death, young and beautiful Fanchon Meredith goes to San Francisco, where she meets and loves a handsome man named Tony; Fanchon is shocked to learn that Tony is a racketeer, implicated in a recent murder. She, too, is now wanted. Fanchon escapes in an airplane under the name of "Smith." Evelyn Howard, whom she had met on the boat coming from Hawaii, is aboard. Evelyn is en route to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, whom she has never met. After Fanchon confides in Evelyn, the latter treats her coolly. The plane crashes and Fanchon is the only survivor. She decides to escape Tony and the past and start life anew by masquerading as Evelyn. She requests a doctor to wire Mrs. Carstairs that "Evelyn" is safe. A wire comes from Mrs. Carstairs saying that Collin cannot meet Fanchon. Fanchon learns Collin is Mrs. Carstairs' only son. Mrs. Carstairs meets Fanchon at train, exclaiming, "But you're not Evelyn, are you? . . . You can't be." The girl's terror of being discovered passes when Mrs. Carstairs explains she couldn't believe anyone so beautiful could belong in the family. Her kindness and affection prick Fanchon's conscience.

SOME ODD FACTS

Valued at $40,000, a British Guiana stamp recently exhibited in Boston is regarded as the costliest square inch of paper in the world. This issue was printed in 1856 in Guiana by a local printer as the supply of stamps had run out, and the specimen exhibited at Boston is believed to be the only one in existence.

Wise Woman Warns Niece About Boy Friend

"Aunt Kate never lets me go anywhere," Olive complained.

What she really meant was that her aunt would not let her go out with Gus Higgins, but Olive couldn't tell him, or at least she didn't dare tell him.

"Yeah? Well, don't you want to go, Kid?"

"Why—yes, I guess I do—sure I do," Olive stammered.

"Then if you want to go—come on along and the heck with your aunt," advised Gus.

"I—I couldn't get away, I'm afraid."

"Walk out on her."

"I wouldn't dare. You see I ain't working right now and I got no place to go and Aunt Kate's good to me."

"Don't let that worry you, Kid—if the old lady gets sore and fires you I'll find you a job and everything'll be jake."

Olive thought this over. It would be nice, having a good job and living in her own room and not being afraid to say her soul was her own.

"Well, I'll tell you, Gus, I might sneak away, at that," she finally said.

"Atta Kid—how about tonight?"

"And you'd lam then, what?"

"What?"

"You'd beat it soon as the old dame was snoozin'?"

ARRANGEMENTS MADE

"Yes—if you are sure you'll find me a job and everything if auntie throws me out."

"Of course—of course, leave it to me, Kid."

"And a swell feed."

"I'd love it, Gus."

"Then I'll be up at th' drug store waitin' for you."

"All right—wait, if anything happened auntie didn't take her snooze I couldn't make it and it wouldn't be fair to keep you waiting, so you come past here about eight and if auntie is awake and I can't get out I'll leave a magazine against the window screen, Gus."

"Oke with me, Kid—only try and make a break—walk out on her and don't worry."

"I'll try. I've got to get back with the bread now, Gus."

Olive Kline hurried back to her aunt's stuffy tenement. She felt that she was being kept down altogether too much by her aunt, although she knew well enough that when some of her other boy friends of the neighborhood came to see her her aunt did not object.

Gus Higgins was sporty. He seemed to have plenty of money and he appealed to Olive as about the ideal good-looking boy friend.

Her Aunt Kate had no use for Gus or any of his sort.

OLIVE UNDECIDED

"You keep away from them boys who don't have no jobs and yet seem to have plenty of money—they're no good and mostly worse—that Gus Higgins, now, he never does a stroke of work—do you suppose somebody gives him his money?" Aunt Kate warned.

But Olive wasn't convinced.

Gus Higgins had an "air" about him. He was always well dressed, always seemed to have money and he had a nice car. She knew about some of these boys who had regular jobs—they hated to spend a nickle, it seemed to her.

At the tenement block Olive stopped to chat with Millie Parsons, who had been married only a few months. Millie lived in the tenement right over Olive's aunt's place.

"Come up tonight, Olive," Millie invited. "I'll have Joe bring his brother over."

Joe was Millie's husband and his younger brother was extremely anxious to make a hit with Olive. He worked in a trucking company repair shop and Olive often saw him coming home. This young chap, Ken Parsons, was not very much of a Beau Brummel at these times, being somewhat greasy and grimy.

Ken Parsons was the sort of chap Olive's Aunt Kate had in mind for Olive—the kind who had a job and worked steadily at it.

"Oh, I don't know," Olive said, hesitatingly, at Millie Parsons' invitation.

"Come on up, Ken will be there and Joe will get some ice cream and we'll play cards or somethin'."

"Honest, I don't know, Millie—I got a lot to do tonight for Aunt Kate."

It was Olive's only excuse.

"Well, come up if you can—leave what you got to do until tomorrow."

"I'll see—but if I don't come up you'll know I'm helping Aunt Kate, and can't get away," Olive said, hastily. It would be embarrassing for her if she sneaked out and they came down to get her and awakened her aunt.

Olive began to clear away the few dishes. Her aunt sat and fanned herself and read an evening paper.

Con Jendron came in.

"Any new ones, Gus?" he asked, sotto voice.

"Got a couple lined up and one dead sure for tonight. This is a swell little dame, looker and everything. I'm gonna keep her out so late her aunt will kick her out of th' house, then I'm gonna get her a job," and Gus winked.

"Bring her around to my place, Gus—I'll wise up Jen. You tell the kid it's a roomin' place."

"Yeah? Forget it."

About the same time Ken Parsons arrived at the home of his brother in the tenement over Olive's Aunt Kate.

"Uh-huh."

"She comin' up?"

QUITS READING

"Guess so—if she don't have to do a lot of work for her aunt."

"That aunt of hers sure works her—Gee, I hope she comes up—she's a swell kid."

"I might. Ollie's a corker," Ken admitted.

Meanwhile Aunt Kate had finished reading the scandals and the advice to sweethearts column, so she dropped the paper and devoted herself to the fan.

Olive eyed her secretly, for signs of her usual hot weather stunt—the little sleep on the fire escape.

Finally she began to collect cushions. Olive was delighted.

She arranged the cushions and a blanket and crawled out on the fire escape.

It never failed, she would be asleep within 10 minutes. Olive removed the magazine from the front window screen so that Gus would know that she would get away and go to Coney with him.

Ken Parsons came down, hesitated at Olive's door and passed down. He finally came back with some ice cream.

"I got choclut 'n' v'nilla, Olive likes that combine best of all," Ken explained. "I'm gonna put part on the ice for her in case she comes up."

"She'll be up—she's no fool, Ken," his brother said. "She wouldn't turn down a swell worker like you."

Gus Higgins sauntered down the street and eyed the front window of the tenement. No magazine there. He grinned.

Olive tip-toed about, doing up the dishes and now and then peering out on the fire escape.

At last Aunt Katie was sleeping out there on the fire escape, buttressed round about with the cushions, getting all possible of the very slight evening breese.

"Ouch — wha — wha — eee—eeeeeow!"

"Oh—I thought I was burning up—what—why look!"

Olive looked.

"Ice cream — chocolate ice cream—some must have been spilled from up above some place and it went right down your neck, auntie," Olive said, trying to kill a desire to giggle and at the same time furious over her aunt's untimely awakening.

"What you doin' in your best dress?" Aunt Kate asked, suspiciously.

"I was going up to see Millie—she asked me."

"Oh—well, run along up, Ollie—that's all right. Perhaps Ken will be there."

Ken was there. Olive had a pleasant evening despite her constant wish that she could be down to Coney with Gus.

SHOCKED BY NEWS

They had a big laugh over the accident of Ken spilling the ice cream through the grating on sleeping Aunt Kate.

And at breakfast next morning Aunt Kate, scanning the morning tabloid, said, "Good heavens—there—what did I tell you, Ollie, that Gus Higgins was no good? He was arrested last night charged with being connected with a white slave ring!"

Ollie turned pale and trembled a little as she read the item about the arrest of Gus and others.

"Imagine!" she murmured. "Just imagine—what a dish of ice cream done."

"Are you crazy, Ollie?"

She kissed her aunt.

"No, aunty, just happy," she said.

Judiciary Cliques

Alexander P. Lindsay Renders a Service in Speaking Out Against Combines of Judges.

Alexander P. Lindsay, a candidate for one of the seven places to be filled on the bench of Common Pleas Court, did well in his speech Saturday in calling attention to the evil of cliques, blocs and combines in the judiciary.

If there is any public office for which the candidate's individual fitness should be considered, and all other considerations eliminated, by the voter, it is a judicial position.

Yet we find the seven judges in the race combined in a clique, running together on a "one for all and all for one" platform.

If these seven judges were all of precisely the same caliber there might be some sense in the arrangement. But they are of widely varying types. We find some excellent men among them, and some who are not so excellent.

We find on the slate men who have been prominently identified with machine politics, as exemplified, let us say, by Judge Samuel H. Gardner, and on the other hand we have men like Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, of quite a different type.

It is ridiculous to think that because a citizen is favorable to the candidacy of one he should support the other.

The slate should be ignored.

Objectionable Signs

The Candidates Responsible for Slogans Painted on the Boulevards Should Pay for Removing Them.

City Traffic Engineer Lewis M. McIntyre disapproves of the candidates' signs painted on the boulevards near intersections in paint of the same color as is used in giving traffic directions to motorists. He opined, however, that they could not be removed.

A Sun-Telegraph man went out with a can of paint remover and a rag and demonstrated that the signs could be quickly erased.

McIntyre now hesitatingly talks of using gasoline or alcohol on the objectionable signs, but does not seem to be sure they will be satisfactory.

He fears it will be out of the question to obtain paint remover for weeks because of the red tape that must be unwound in getting a requisition on the Supplies Department filled.

Why not ask the candidates who are responsible to remove the offending signs?

They should be required in any event to pay for the material and labor used in erasing them.

The Fallston Barrier

It Is in the Public Interest That Boroughs Should Be Forbidden to Barricade State Roads.

While sympathizing with the people of Fallston in their protest against the condition of the state highway passing through the borough, we welcome the decision of Judge William A. McConnel that the borough has exceeded its authority in barricading the road.

The highway in question comes down into Fallston on a rather steep slope from Patterson Heights, and on several occasions trucks coming down the hill have escaped from control and crashed into Fallston houses. That led to the erection of the barricade stopping traffic.

The highway is an important one, much traveled, and the barrier has put motorists to considerable inconvenience by forcing them to detour.

Nevertheless the State Highway Department should do something to protect Fallston from runaway trucks.

A New Coal Plan

It Is Encouraging to Find the Operators Co-Operating in Efforts to Improve Conditions.

J. T. M. Stoneroad, president of the Carnegie Coal Company, offers a new plan for the rehabilitation of the soft coal industry. He says:

"If the Governors of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio were to agree upon a plan applicable in their respective states with respect to coal just as the Governors of Oklahoma and Texas are doing in respect to oil, the overproduction and waste of a natural resource and injury to both capital and labor would be immediately overcome and a long step taken toward the restoration of prosperity in the three states named."

This may or may not be a good plan. It is welcome as a basis for discussion. A suggestion for action is preferable to passive acceptance of the existing situation.

We understand there is a "coal table" in the dining room of the Duquesne Club, where operators meet daily at luncheon to discuss ways and means of lifting the industry out of the depression.

Such co-operation is encouraging.

Pittsburgh Chemists

Award to Frank J. Tone Brings to Mind the City's Pre-Eminence in This Field of Science.

The announcement that at the meeting of the American Chemical Society at Buffalo next week a gold medal will be presented to a former Pittsburgher, Frank J. Tone, president of the Carborundum Company, of Niagara Falls, as first winner of the Jacob F. Schoelkopf prize, brings to mind some other Pittsburgh connections with great achievements in chemistry.

Mr. Tone, once an engineer with the Pittsburgh Railways Company, is to be honored for his work on the properties and commercial applications of silicon carbide.

The invention of carborundum by Edward G. Acheson and the discovery of the electrolytic method of producing aluminum by Charles M. Hall are among the outstanding developments in chemistry in which Pittsburgh has played a conspicuous part.

A multitude of achievements have come from the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research and other local laboratories.

Chemistry is a branch of science in which Pittsburgh is eminent.

'Radicalism' as Conservatism

By Claude G. Bowers

Most upheavals, political or social, come from short-sightedness and greed. Twenty years ago the miners and operators had their contests, but the miners were well organized in most communities producing the most coal, and the fights were staged in joint conventions of the two forces and compromises always resulted. Today the mining industry is in a bad way; and the miners generally, in the soft coal regions, are in a desperate plight.

The United Mine Workers are not what they once were. This has been due in part to the inability of the Mine Workers to organize the miners in the coal fields of West Virginia and Kentucky. Because the non-union miners received less for their work, the operators of those mines could afford to sell their coal cheaper than those operating union mines. The public generally bought where it could buy cheapest. The result was that the operators of union mines were threatened; some, or many, closed down their mines; men were thrown out of work. And the conclusion was reached by many of the operators that they would have to get rid of the unions if they were to compete with the non-union mines. It is just human nature all around.

Big Number of Miners Now Out of Work

Today there are great numbers of miners out of work, and in some sections their families are in need of the necessities of life. There are short-sighted operators who are not bothered about the suffering. The mines are their mines; they want to make all the money out of them they can, and they are not concerned with the economic situation of the men who go down into the earth to get the coal.

But there is one phase they overlook. When men feel the pressure of economic necessity and a sense of injustice and find that, because of these, their families are suffering and the prospects of their children darkening, they become revolutionary in spirit. It is possible to paint a glowing picture of the advantages of our social and economic system and of our political institutions, but the man without hope under these wants none of them. He is fertile soil for all subversive doctrines. The result is that there is more sympathy with Communism in the mining regions, where the miners have no more chance than is comfortable.

The labor union is the best safeguard against real radicalism. And yet there are men in the business world who imagine that they would be better off if there were no unions to tell them what they cannot pay as wages and what working conditions they must provide.

A Long Story of Injustice, Murder and Other Crime

A real, authentic history of the long fight to unionize the mines of West Virginia would make fascinating reading. It would be a story of cruel injustice, of murder and other crimes. Many years ago when union organizers were sent into that mining field they were almost invariably beaten up. One of them spent a long while in a hospital when he got out and never afterward recovered his health. Nothing was ever done by the government about these things.

To protect themselves against union organizers and union sentiment the operators organized private armies which they called "mine guards." These were recruited for the most part from among the most desperate elements in the cities. They were armed and given all the authority of an officer of the law—and more. For where an officer of the law resorts to brutality it usually follows that he loses his job, because public opinion demands it; but the brutal mine guard is considered all the more valuable.

These mine guards, or private armies, are the most reactionary and feudal instrumentalities we have in America today and are responsible for much of the restlessness and crime in the mining regions. The United States Senate Investigating Committee reported this true once years ago and urged that they be abandoned. A committee in West Virginia, composed of reputable citizens, including the bishop of a church, also reached the same conclusion. The Senate committee, of which Senator Wagner was a member, but recently reported similarly.

But nothing was done.

Communism Being Bred In Mining Regions

And the result is that we are breeding Communism in these places. That, too, is in accord with human nature. The worm will always turn. Human rights must be respected if property rights are to be preserved; but we always have a few purse-proud leaders of industry who cannot see the connection.

Happily, there is an increasing number of industrialists and businessmen who know that a program of social justice reforms would be a policy of the highest conservatism, who know that it is not evidence of strength to beat down the weak. But it requires courage in a politician or public man to lead in a fight for such reforms. He knows he will be denounced as a "demagogue," or "radical," and it takes courage to go up against the lifted eyebrows of the snobs.

And yet, so many of the immortals of today were the "demagogues" and "radicals" of yesterday. Jesus Christ was a "radical" when he scourged the money changers from the temple. Jefferson was a "radical," "demagogue" and "Jacobin" when he insisted that human rights be written into the statutes. Jackson was a "radical" when he destroyed the embryo plutocracy of the Biddle bank. And Woodrow Wilson was frowned upon as a "radical"—and in the best sense, he was one.

Any man is a "radical" who is opposed to the status quo.

What Today's Highest Conservatism Calls For

It calls for some form of unemployment and old age insurance.

It calls for the preservation of the people's rights in the nation's power resources and the protection of the people against exploitation by power and utility combines.

But he who stands for these things must expect to be dubbed a "radical."

Do we not read that Gov. Roosevelt is a "radical" because of his stand on power and for some such social justice measures as outlined? And yet his is merely the radicalism of conservative common sense.

It is the radicalism of Wilson and of Jefferson—a constructive radicalism that makes the nation safe for sane conservatism. Business men and men of wealth should get behind this sentiment in these days when every one not stone blind must see that even in America the time has come to put our house in order. We cannot tell under present conditions what storm may come from across the sea, nor when. The surest defence against that contingency is not in armed men nor repressive laws, but in the happiness and contentment of the average man and woman.

Subversive doctrines feed on hunger and thrive on fear.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Will Men Become Kiss-Shy?

Men will soon become kiss-shy. A popular young bachelor assures me of this.

If the women continue to become wilder and wilder, the once dominant sex will have to take matters into its own hands and do something to make the world safe for romance. If women continue to be the hunters and pursuers, men will have to defend themselves.

* * *

Somebody must observe the conventionalities and help keep up the moral standards and the social forms.

Like the mid-Victorian girl (so this young bachelor predicts), a man will soon be defending his honor, bragging of his chastity, boasting that he has never been kissed, and, if necessary, walking back home.

Already, there are signs of it in the air. Lots of men have stopped smoking cigarets and given up profanity, because these things are so effeminate. And most men are going around the beaches, modestly clothed in long fantastically embroidered robes, which reach 'way, 'way down to their delicate ankles, while the girls brazenly sprawl around half nude and eye them speculatively.

* * *

If women insist on being bold and aggressive, men will simply have to retire into their shells and make themselves unattainable, in order to escape the wild, pursuant female. And lots of them are doing that.

* * *

A shy, retiring, well-bred young man, who has been brought up by his mother with high, beautiful ideals about love and marriage, will not yield his lips to the promiscuous kisses of every girl he meets at a petting-party, nor accept the casual embraces of every woman who enters a taxicab with him.

This sort of thing has gone on just as far as the men will STAND it!

And the only way to do that is to avoid the reckless, daring, importunate, devil-may-care women, who drive speedy sport-cars, and wait until some nice, serious, dependable girl comes along, with whom he can safely trust himself.

* * *

The day will come—and this young bachelor has not a doubt of it—when a man will treasure his reputation and will carefully avoid being seen in the company of a girl, who is known as a home-breaker, a man-tamer and a Donna Juanita; whose reputation as a lady is not spotless, or who has no respect for his sex. He would rather sit at home and read a good book!

* * *

A nice boy will not use loud-scented soap or heavily-perfumed pomade on his hair. He will ask his father, before he will let ANY woman take him motoring in the moonlight. And NO man will surrender his lips and caresses to a woman, until she has first confessed her love and proposed honorable marriage.

* * *

All of which, if true, gives the sentimentalists and the idealists hope that things will change for the better, as they always DO. But, the men will have to change them—the women WON'T!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Diary of a modern Pepys: To market, buying a ripe Cheddar cheese, and picking up Jack Benny and his lady carried them to the Warwick. Then stopping to see Dave Levy, the haberdasher, who has been a-journeying on the continent, and also W. U. Day, the auto merchant.

Home where awaited a vexed lady telling a monstrous tale against a man high in public life which I do not believe, knowing ways of blackmailers. So laboring awhile and to a tea talking to Harry Silvey, whose gray hair lays the neatest ever I saw, and to Frank Tours, the orchestra conductor.

Joe and Margaret Moore to dinner but left early. My wife and I fell to discussing the evening. I sat on her front porch wearing my first long trousers and grandma passing inquired: "Is 'itty man calling on booful lady in him new suit?" Then to the splenderous Follies and talking later to Ziegfeld, Bernie Sobel and Eddie Welch.

Nothing is quite so difficult as picking up the threads of New York's running story after several weeks absence. The metropolitan changes are so swift and varied that at first blush everything seems copy. However, the most distinct impression is the absence of that black war-like pessimism that keeps Europe as taut as a fiddle string.

All the news hot from Gallup, N. M.: "Out here we don't milk. We juice a cow. And a local Indian reads your stuff daily in a Phoenix paper. A Chinese laundryman opened up over a garage one day this spring. That night someone tossed a hoot owl over his transom. He jumped out a window, hit running and has never been back. You probably are looking upon this as the ravings of an old desert rat. Well, I was born in the shadows of the Hotel Astor, was a night waiter at Jack's 11 years and after five years here I talk, act and feel like a native."

There's a decided contrast in living—from hell roaring Jack's to the sleepy hamlet on the Santa Fe trail. Gallup, at least from a train window, does not suggest the feverish activity of its name. Yet Gallup can offer a few surprises. Dropping into a very masculine lunch room during the train's stop one late evening, a bright blonde, quite remindful of the elfin Claire Luce, served transients coffee with one hand and read Walter de la Mare from the other.

* * *

It was at Gallup on another stop that a sun-tanned long-horn peered into the baggage car at my Boston terrier and drawled: "What kind of a houn' do you call that, Bud?"

* * *

New York lazed through a hot summer with the smallest number of roof gardens in 30 years. The only new al fresco experiments were an offering of old-fashioned melodrama—such as Lincoln J. Carter's "Fast Mail"—atop an upper Broadway hotel and Gil Boag's club on the St. Moritz roof. No one knows the why of the roof garden debacle. Like the pug dog and puff sleeves, they simply went out. Fifteen years ago open air rafes atop the Waldorf, Majestic, McAlpin, Astor and the Bossert in Brooklyn were high spots of summer diversion.

A curious grape vine telegraphy slithers through the Tenderloin. I here re acutely aware of it one night months ago. Stopping at a corner coffee pot place to telephone a garage I passed a table where a man was saying: "They ought to be shouting extras now." Twenty minutes later Times Square was filled with cries: "Two Shot in Street Battle." I became slightly giddy.

* * *

I talked to a Japanese juggler recently who can hold three bamboo reeds with spinning plates atop them in each hand while another reed with a spinning plate balances on his forehead. He has been practicing for more than 18 years and tells me his most trying moment was when a waggish stage hand in Portland, Ore., scattered a sneeze powder on his mat during the climax of his spinning. But he held back kerchoos until he took his bow. As mean as it was I still think it a beaut of an idea.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Well, here it is again, for the umpty-steenth time, the same old "Flanders Luck" chain letter. You've had 'em, too. Everybody has had them. Bet you could recite it by heart—

"THE FLANDERS CHAIN OF GOOD LUCK. This was sent to my house. Copy it and send it within two hours to persons you wish good luck. This was started by American officers in Flanders and has been around the world 60 times. The one who breaks the chain will have bad luck. It is astonishing how prosperity will come in a few days. Wait and see what happens. In four days it will bring good luck. Send this one and four others to the people you wish good luck. Do not keep this one."

Chain letters—they've been going the rounds since Adam was a pup. What started them? That's easy. They were started and they're kept going by the oldest, commonest emotion in human nature—FEAR. And they'll keep on going as long as human fear holds out. Which, from present indications, will be plenty long.

"But I know of cases where they worked," someone says. "I know a man who refused to send one on. He said they weren't going to get HIM. And he had the awfulest bad luck. His bank closed that very week. Then there was my aunt. Everyone says my aunt is terribly superstitious. They laughed at her because she sat right down and copied that letter and sent it out. But right the next day she rented her spare bedroom to a boarder. Maybe you'll say it was just an accident—"

Not necessarily. These particular cases may have been coincidences. That bank, probably, was getting ready to close weeks before the chain letter arrived. And boarders do rent rooms without Flanders warning. But, accidents aside—GOOD LUCK AND BAD LUCK DO FOLLOW MANY A CHAIN LETTER. But it isn't the chain letter that brings them. It's THE FAITH OR THE FEAR THAT THE CHAIN LETTERS AROUSE.

BELIEVE IN GOOD LUCK, AND IT WILL COME.

BELIEVE IN BAD LUCK, AND IT WILL HAPPEN.

There's no deep, dark mystery about that. "Belief" isn't just a name . . . just a vague notion passing through the brain. Belief is an ACTUAL HAPPENING. Thoughts ARE things. Thoughts DO things. Whenever your mind does something, that action is as real as if your hands had done something. The thoughts that happen in you, determine the things that happen TO you.

When you "believe"—you expect something, you get ready for something, you concentrate all your forces on a certain result. And the thing you believe, will happen. It may not happen exactly as you expected it to happen. Life sends us our answers in queer packages. But you'll get your answer, never doubt . . . THAT ANSWER YOU MADE READY IN YOUR OWN MIND . . . THAT ANSWER YOU INVITED IN YOUR OWN HEART.

And that's as true of bad answers as of good ones. If you "believe" in bad luck you'll get it as surely as if you believed in good luck.

Do chain letters work? Have they power? Yes, anything has power if you put power in it, through your fear or faith. Rabbits' feet work. Powdered spiders mixed with dried frogs' legs and stewed in blood, work. Love potions, flavored with finger nails and dandruff, work. Any symbol, however silly, will work if you back it with the terrific dynamite of faith or fear. It's the BELIEF that does the trick.

If the millions of people who have copied and forwarded that fool chain letter had put an equal amount of faith into hard work, decent living, generous love and clean ambition, THERE WOULDN'T BE ROOM IN THE WORLD TO HOLD THEIR GOOD LUCK.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Trouble

Trouble? Well, let's meet it,
Let's not run away;
Maybe if we greet it
Bravely, we'll defeat it
By the close of day!

Trouble? Others bear it,
Why should we alone
Claim we can not share it?
Rather, let us wear it
Like a precious stone!

Like a ruby glowing
In an amulet;
Let each care be showing
How we still are owing Strength to cares we've met.

Trouble? Why believe it
Must be wholly wrong?
Dauntlessly receive it,
Brave souls, then and weave it
Into light and song!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

You make a very simple statement according to your lights and without a vestige of malice.

It is repeated and with such phrasing and intonation that it becomes offensive to one of your best friends, perhaps.

What is the result?

Coolness, neither daring to speak out, and finally enmity.

Possibly the one who retailed your words did not listen carefully and so did not understand you thoroughly himself.

Perhaps in a spirit of mischief or "for fun of the thing" it was deliberately garbled to see you writhe.

And so good friends drift apart and neither could tell exactly why as the years go by and the incident forgotten.

If you value your friends, do not let little things affect you so seriously that you are unwilling to seek an explanation.

Before you take offense try to understand.

ISN'T IT SO?

An optimist is a man who thinks his son has gone to college to study.

Text For Today

And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the name of the Lord your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you: and my people shall never be ashamed.—Joel, ii:26.
